21-26, June 2009
BOSTON COLLEGE

Ongoing Collaboration in the Year of St. Paul
"Method ... is a framework for collaborative creativity."

[Bernard Loneragan, Method in Theology, xi]

There are many issues in interdisciplinary and intercultural and interfaith dialogue. ... Who are the main dialogue partners, or who should be dialogue partners? What are the key issues in philosophy/theology/science/world politics/globalization and economics/business ethics/the nature of the university... There are many relatively undeveloped themes such as emergent probability ... The notion of universal viewpoint was clarified by Ivo Coelho, SDB, but doesn't it need to be filled in, in a way that shows its relevance to intercultural dialogue?
