Katharine Adam (inset) is still thrilled that her senior thesis is getting published as a book. Called "The New Feminized Majority: How Democrats Can Change America with Women's Values," the book by the '07 BC grad explores the rise of a voting block that embraces values such as empathy, cooperation, and nonviolent solutions to conflict. "[Sociology professor Charles Derber] said to me 'I think this is a really good idea,'" Adam told us yesterday. "I was a little bit wary about turning it into a book because there's a lot of resistance to undergrads getting too much ego." The book, published by Paradigm, comes out April 22. Does it go without saying that Adam is supporting Hillary Clinton? No. "I'm just observing," she said. "Whether it's Hillary or [Barack] Obama, there'll be a stark difference with [John] McCain, who's opting for a hyper-masculinized strategy."
