

Keynote Addressee and Winner of the Arthur C. Harris Justice Award: Joshua Rosenkranz

Joshua Rosenkranz, Esq., lead counsel for FAIR, is one of the nation's leading appellate attorneys. A shareholder with Heller Ehrman LLP since 2003, Rosenkranz has personally argued over 100 appeals in state and federal appellate courts across the nation. He has served as attorney of record in some 1,500 other appeals. He specializes in complex commercial litigation, securities, corporate governance, antitrust, federal preemption, products liability, intellectual property, insurance law, white-collar crime, and constitutional litigation. Before joining Heller Ehrman, Mr. Rosenkranz was the founding president and CEO of the Brennan Center for Justice at New York University School of Law, one of the country's foremost public interest firms. Over the course of eight years, he was the Brennan Center's chief strategist on litigation and public policy advocacy. Before creating the Brennan Center, Mr. Rosenkranz founded the Office of the Appellate Defender, a public defender office specializing in criminal appeals in New York state courts. Rosenkranz was a law clerk for Supreme Court Justice William J. Brennan, Jr. and for the Honorable Antonin Scalia and the Honorable Stephen F. Williams on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit.

The Moot Court Advocates

Howard Bashman, Esq. will stand in the role of Counsel for Appellant, Government. He is a nationally-known appellate lawyer who appears regularly before the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit and Pennsylvania's state appellate courts. In 2003, American Lawyer Media named Bashman one of Pennsylvania's top 40 lawyers under age 40 on the strength of his appellate litigation practice. He was one of a handful of nationally-recognized appellate lawyers who contributed to Senior Judge Ruggero Aldisert's "Winning on Appeal." In 1989, he received his Juris Doctor degree with distinction from Emory University School of Law. Following law school, Bashman had a two-year clerkship for Judge William D. Hutchinson of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit. In addition to engaging in the practice of appellate litigation, Bashman also writes about appellate issues and engages in related bar association activities. He serves as contributing editor for Legal Affairs magazine, which hosts his popular appellate-related Web log, "How Appealing."

Kent Greenfield will stand in the role as Counsel for Respondent, FAIR. He is Professor of Law and Zamparelli Scholar at Boston College Law School, where he teaches and writes in the areas of business law and constitutional law. He is the founder and president of the Forum for Academic and Institutional Rights (FAIR), an association of over thirty law schools and other academic institutions organized to fight for academic freedom and against discrimination. He was also awarded the Emil Slizewski Award for outstanding teaching, given by the graduating class of 2004. Before joining the faculty in 1995, Greenfield served as a law clerk to Justice David H. Souter, of the United States Supreme Court, and to Judge Levin H. Campbell, of the United States Court of Appeals for the First Circuit.

The Moot Court Judges

Herbert P. Wilkins will serve as Chief Justice for our Moot Court. He is the Boston College Law Huber Distinguished Visiting Professor. Professor Wilkins recently retired as Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court. He served the Supreme Judicial Court for nearly thirty years. His contributions to the legal system are many, and include his leadership in the adoption of the new Massachusetts Rules of Professional Conduct. Professor Wilkins has received the Boston Bar Association Citation of Judicial Excellence award and the Haskell Cohn Distinguished Judicial Service Award.

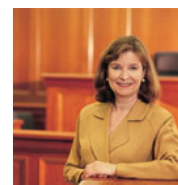

Charles Baron has written extensively here and in Europe about constitutional law and patients' rights. His recent article, "Physician Assisted Suicide Should Be Legalized and Regulated," was published by the Boston Bar Journal. He teaches courses in constitutional law, health law and law and bioethics. Professor Baron is a past president of the Civil Liberties Union of Massachusetts. He received his A.B. and Ph.D. at the University of Pennsylvania, and his LL.B. at Harvard University.

Margaret A. Burnham is Professor of Constitutional Law, Comparative Constitutional Law, and Federal Courts and the Federal System Northeastern University School of Law. Professor Burnham began her career at the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, litigating school desegregation cases. She has held fellowships at Harvard's DuBois Institute and Radcliffe's Bunting Institute. In 1989, she returned to law practice as a founding partner of Boston's first law firm headed by African-American women. In 1992, former South African President Nelson Mandela asked Professor Burnham to serve on an international commission that investigated human rights violations committed by the African National Congress. That commission was the precursor to the Truth and Reconciliation Commission established after the 1994 election in South Africa.

Michael Cassidy teaches and writes in the areas of Criminal Law, Evidence, and Professional Responsibility at Boston College Law School. He was awarded the Emil Slizewski Teacher of the Year Award in 2005. Professor Cassidy is considered an expert on the subject of prosecutorial ethics. He has served as a member of the Governor's Commission on Corrections Reform, as a member of the Massachusetts State Ethics Commission and, as Editor-in-Chief of the Massachusetts Law Review. Professor Cassidy received his Juris Doctor degree, magna cum laude, from Harvard Law School. He served as law clerk to the Honorable Edward. F. Hennessy, Chief Justice of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court.

Victoria J. Dodd is Professor of Law at Suffolk University Law School, where she teaches Civil Procedure, Constitutional Law, Criminal Law and Education Law. Professor Dodd specializes in the fields of Educational Law and Constitutional Law and served numerous times as Chair of the Law and Education Section of the Association of American Law Schools, most recently from 2000-2001. She is a life member of the Massachusetts Bar Foundation. Professor Dodd is currently a member of the Association of American Law Schools Standing Committee on Sections and the Annual Meeting.

Supreme Court.

Lawrence M. Friedman is Professor of Law at the New England School of Law, where he teaches Civil Procedure and Constitutional Law. Before joining the New England School of Law faculty, he was an assistant professor of law at Boston College Law School. Before teaching, Professor Friedman was an associate with Choate, Hall & Stewart in Boston. Professor Friedman was selected as a First Amendment Fellow by the National Press Club in 2002 and was a recipient of the Lawyer's Committee for Civil Rights Under Law Recognition Award in 1999. He served with the New Hampshire Superior Court and then as law clerk to the Honorable John T. Broderick, Jr., of the New Hampshire

Bruce Hay is Professor of Law at Harvard Law School, where he teaches courses on Civil Procedure, Evidence, and various subjects on the connection between law, the humanities, and the social sciences. He has published articles on procedure and conflict resolution, the attorney-client relation, class actions and mass torts, and criminal law enforcement, and is at work on several articles concerning the Supreme Court. Prior to joining the Harvard faculty he practiced appellate litigation in Washington, D.C., and clerked for Justice Antonin Scalia of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judith McMorrow is Professor of Law at Boston College Law School. She teaches Torts and Professional Responsibility. After graduating from the University of Notre Dame Law School in 1980, Professor McMorrow clerked for the Honorable Gilbert S. Merritt of the United States Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger of the United States Supreme Court. Professor McMorrow is the President-elect of the Association of American Law Schools Section on Professional Responsibility. She has also been appointed to a five-year term as a member of the Committee on Judicial Ethics of the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court and the Executive Committee of the Professional Responsibility Section of the Association of American Law Schools.

Larry Yackle is Professor of Constitutional Law and Federal Courts at Boston University School of Law. Professor Yackle has written five books including the recent Federal Courts (second edition, 2003) and Habeas Corpus (2003). He is best known for his 1994 book, Reclaiming the Federal Courts and for his pro bono work with the American Civil Liberties Union and the NAACP Legal Defense and Education Fund. Professor Yackle has also written more than two-dozen amicus curiae briefs in the United States Supreme Court on behalf of those organizations and other advocacy groups.

