*The courses listed on this form that will count toward the dual degree must reflect content coverage which allows the student to participate in experiences which reflect the issues of education law. Student should select courses that allow an opportunity to promote their interdisciplinary inquiry; all cross-listed law and education courses should be taken under the ELHE number rather than the LAWS number so that students can achieve 21 credits of LSOE coursework for the master’s degree.

Students will be considered full-time during the semester they are registered for ELHE 8100, Master’s Comprehensive Exam.
