

Boston College Procurement Services Announces a New Contract with AMS Imaging

Boston College has contracted with AMS Imaging to provide scanning services for the University. AMS Imaging has been providing secure, high quality document scanning and microfilm services for hundreds of universities, government agencies, and private industry clients throughout New England for over 40 years. As part of an initiative to reduce paper filing and provide improved records retention and access, AMS can provide departments with electronic files in various formats and media. AMS provides scanning in OCR format, which will allow searches for text within a document. This is provided by AMS at the same cost as standard PDF scanning, and at a significantly reduced cost from our previous contract. As the University moves forward with a document management solution, AMS will provide scanning in a format that can be uploaded into the University solution. More information is available on Procurement Services' website under Contracted and Preferred Vendors for Scanning Services.

AMS is honored to have been selected to provide campus-wide digital document scanning services to Boston College. We look forward to adding Boston College to a long list of satisfied clients. Please contact Paul Connolly, your AMS account executive, to discuss any scanning projects you are considering.
