After a long winter of late night practices in the bubble, Club Baseball was more than ready to get outdoors and begin their spring season. The team started off with two hard-fought games against nationally-ranked Drexel University, where the young Eagles team showed a lot of promise. The Eagles then went into conference play and put together an 8-7 overall conference record. Highlights include wins against first-place Northeastern University, an extra innings battle with a tough UMass squad, and a series sweep against UCONN. In their first season as a member of NCBA Division 1, the Eagles placed third in the North Atlantic North Division. Going into next season, Baseball will have 20 returning members. With a full season of Division 1 competition under their belt, the Eagles will look to bring a division title, and maybe more, back to Chestnut Hill. The Eagles will be saying farewell to seniors Matt Burke and Justin Katz. Burke, who made the team as pitcher last year, has been the starting left fielder for the Eagles, after a breakout performance against SUNY Albany. Katz leaves the Club Baseball program as one of its most senior members. A member since his freshman year, Katz has served as a mentor and role model for the younger members on the team. Both seniors will be greatly missed.
Men’s Club Basketball played a strong season with an unbelievable finish. In addition to a few early games early in the semester, the men played in two NIRSA Regional Championships hosted by BU and UMass Amherst, where they finished near the top during both tournaments. The team grabbed one last win against Harvard before traveling to North Carolina for NIRSA Nationals. The men put up an incredible performance at Nationals, as they moved through pool play and semifinals to reach the National Championship game against Cornell. They fought a hard battle but lost to Cornell in the finals. However, it was quite an impressive performance, especially for a team that was playing on the national stage for the first time. The team would like to thank Club Sports, the university, and NIRSA, as well as all the family and friends who supported them.

Finished 2nd at NIRSA National Tournament
This was the inaugural year for the Women’s Club Basketball team. They ended the year with an impressive 24-2 record and had the opportunity to play against teams such as Harvard, Dartmouth, Northeastern, and Brown throughout the course of the season. Going into the year, the team’s goal was to win the NIRSA Regional Tournament at Boston University. They went 6-0 at regionals to capture the title. This was an accomplishment of which the team is truly proud and in the years to come they hope to expand their success to the national level. In addition to their team success at Regionals, three players also received “Regional All-Star” recognition: Shea North ’18, Maria Ferrari ’15, and Martha Veroneau ’17.
After a highly successful fall, Men’s Rowing carried this momentum into the spring season. A brutal winter kept the team indoors until March, but over Spring Break the entire squad had the opportunity to travel to Jacksonville, Florida for warm weather and a big week of training before returning to more ice on the Charles River. The team hit the water again only days before competition at the Murphy Cup Regatta. Two weeks later, the Varsity 8+ crew brought home the first medals of the season at the Knecht Cup where they captured a 3rd place finish. The Second Varsity 8+ also placed 4th and the Third Varsity 8+ placed 6th in their respective Grand Final events. Later in April, the team headed to Worcester to face WPI and UMass for the McCarthy-McGee Challenge Cup, with the Varsity 8+ bringing home the cup. The Varsity 4+, Novice 8+, and Novice 4+ also captured wins on Lake Quinsigamond that day. The team returned on May 2 with an exciting day of racing at the New England Regional Championships. The N 4+, N 8+, 2V 8+, and 1V 8+ all qualified for the Grand Finals from their heats, with the V 4+ advancing to the Petite Final and winning that later in the afternoon. The Second Varsity and Novice 8+s each finished 4th to fast fields, with the 2V being narrowly edged by 3rd place Wesleyan by a margin of just 0.06 seconds. The Varsity 8+ captured a silver medal with one of the best program finishes in history. The entire squad proved its depth, capturing the Men’s Team Points Trophy for the second year in a row. The team traveled again on May 10 for the ECAC National Invitational Rowing Championship and ended their season in Gainesville, Georgia at the American Collegiate Rowing Association Championships on May 23 and 24, where the Men’s 1V 8+ placed first in the petite final.
Cycling

Club Cycling’s 2015 spring road season went really well despite having to face some challenging weather. The first race weekend was cancelled due to the major snowstorms and the team faced plenty of rain, snow, and cold temperatures throughout the rest of the season. The team even road raced in the snow during a race in central Massachusetts. Despite the challenges presented by the weather, the team still had a lot of fun and had a good showing throughout the season. This season, Cycling traveled to the Columbia/Rutgers, MIT/Tufts, UVM, and UNH/Dartmouth races. Every weekend the team members competed in criteriums, road races or circuit races, and team and/or individual time trials. This year there were a couple of new race courses which the team was excited to try, including a relatively flat and fun circuit race in New York, and a fantastic new criterium course on Tufts’ campus. By far the best race weekend of the season was the UNH and Dartmouth weekend. With temperatures in the 50s and 60s it was a nice break from the cold, and most of the team performed really well during their final weekend. Everyone finished the season strong with a 40 mile road race in Stafford, NH. The team is looking forward to developing its mountain biking team in the fall and recruiting both new and experienced cyclists.
This is the second season the team rode at Hillside Meadows Equestrian Center and with coach, Sheila Dunham. It was a successful season as the team finished fourth place overall. This marks a tie for the highest team finish to date, as they also placed fourth in the large region last year. The team rode in three spring season shows hosted by Bentley, Wellesley and Bridgewater State, and Worcester State. Team highlights included winning back to back High Point Championships in the fall semester at shows hosted by BU and Tufts.
Men’s Club Ice Hockey had another successful season under the leadership of 8 seniors, including captains Keith Nicholson and Donald Carnicky. After a tough start to the season with losses to William Patterson University, the #1 team in the Northeast, and University of Connecticut, the team bounced back from a 2-4 start to finish with a 14-11-1 record for the 2014-2015 season. Finishing second in the Patriot League division, the team qualified for the NECHA playoffs where they fell to eventual champion UMASS in overtime in the semi-finals. However, they were able to get their revenge on the Minutemen in the Regional tournament, where the rivals faced off in the first round. BC prevailed when it really mattered to win 5-2, largely due to the great performance by the line of Allen Taylor, Jon Farrow, and Tim Doyle. With one more win needed to reach the National Championship in Salt Lake City, BC fell to red-hot NYU 0-2 despite a tremendous game from senior goaltender Ryan Polischuk. NYU went on to win the National tournament weeks later.
Women’s Ice Hockey finished their first season as a club sport with a record of six wins, five losses, and two ties. As a first year team, they started off the season a little slower than the competition, losing their first game to BU 0-6. However, after a few weeks of playing together, they became a cohesive and almost unstoppable team in their division. In a nail-biter game against Endicott, the team was able to rally back from a 0-3 deficit within the third period bringing the game into overtime. After five minutes of very exciting back-and-forth action, the game ended in a 3-3 tie. This game came in the midst of a long stretch of wins and ties. In their first game of 2015, the team faced BU again at Conte Forum. This time, however, they dominated the ice for the majority of the game and the game ended in a 1-1 tie. After another exciting game against Westfield State on Superbowl Sunday, the women were able to secure a spot in the division playoffs facing MIT. Although MIT was ultimately able to gain the advantage, winning the game 3-2, the Eagles were proud of the season and the improvements seen on the ice. They look forward to next year with much anticipation and excitement as women’s collegiate club hockey in New England continues to expand and opponents become more competitive.
Men’s Club Lacrosse entered the season ranked #8 in the MCLA preseason poll and with high expectations for a dominant season. Coming off a quarterfinal finish in last year’s national tournament, and with a brand new coaching staff led by first-year head coach Peter Sessa, the team was looking to improve upon the previous year’s accolades. The team started the season going up against Colorado and Colorado State, the winners of the last three national championships. Despite losing both games, the team proved that they could compete with the top teams in the country. The Eagles would go on to finish the season with a total record of 12-3, with their only other loss to Georgia Tech in an overtime thriller. The team went 5-0 in PCLL conference play, and won significant out-of-conference games against Michigan State, Davenport, and Texas. Captains Joey Volk ’15 and John Gosstola ’16 lead the team, while Gosstola and Reed Spencer ’16 led the team in scoring, with 51 and 35 points on the season respectively. Looking forward, the Eagles lose one senior, president and captain Joey Volk. With a promising rising sophomore and junior class, coupled with an established group of seniors alongside head coach Peter Sessa, the sky is the limit for this Eagles team next season.

Women’s Club Lacrosse had a strong season. Though it was short due to the weather and field space, playing nine games in three weeks was no match for the Eagles. The Eagles traveled to West Point for their season opener, where the team played Army and Stonybrook and picked up two wins. The next two games were played locally against URI and Northeastern and allowed them to show the league the strength of this year’s team. A week later, the Eagles traveled to UPenn where they played four games against Maryland, Virginia, Virginia Tech, and UPenn. These games were critical to show the nation who the Eagles were. Women’s Lacrosse returned home ranked as the number one team in the nation and proved they weren’t just a Cinderella story. Finally, they ended their season with a league game against UMass, finishing with a 7-0-2 record.

The team would like to thank everyone who cheered them on throughout the season and their seniors who were unbelievable leaders.
This spring, the men’s rugby club fielded two teams – a competitive 7s team and a developmental 15s team. The 7s team finished second at Armory 7s in March, upending national powerhouse Dartmouth in a thrilling semifinal on their way to a tough loss to AIC, a full varsity program ranked #4 in the nation. A week later, the 7s team traveled down to Charlotte, NC to compete in ACC 7s, where they defeated school rival Notre Dame in an exciting match on their way to a 3rd place finish over Maryland. The team competed in the prestigious Penn Mutual Collegiate Rugby 7s Championship tournament at the end of May, where they played five games against heavy competition in the national spotlight. The developmental 15s side had a long spring season, and the absence of the 7s players allowed younger players to step up and many new players to see field time. The team played Salve Regina and Northeastern, and competed at the Beast of the East tournament. The boys notched wins over Salve Regina and 1 match at Beast of the East, but what is more important is the number of new players the team was able to introduce to the sport – at one point against Northeastern thirteen of the fifteen players on the field had never played rugby before this semester. In late April, the team welcomed back over 40 alumni for the annual alumni weekend. The current underclassmen took the field against the departing seniors and alumni going all the way back to the 70s. In an exciting and enjoyable match the old boys reclaimed the crown from the youngsters to wrap up a strong spring season.
This past season the Boston College Men’s Club Squash Team finished the season with a record of 8-5. Having lost five seniors to graduation at the end of last season, they were pleased to welcome five new players to their roster: Billy Hickey ’15, Robbie Fischer ’16, Stevie Gleason ’17, Albert Yoon ’17, and Alexander Green ’17. The season began with a solid performance at the Northeastern University round robin where they defeated Siena College and the University of Vermont but fell just short to host Northeastern. The rest of the season was a grind, but the young roster performed well throughout, especially on their trip to Philadelphia to play in the Haverford College Round Robin. At the College Squash National Championships at Trinity College in February, the men’s team received a two-seed in the Serues division and faced the University of Richmond in the first round. After a victorious 6-3 win over the Spiders, the team faced Colgate University in the next round. While the team had a dominant victory over Colgate in the regular season (8-1), the second matchup proved more difficult. After the first eight matches the score was tied 4-4, but the Eagles were able to edge out a victory in the final match to move on to the final. In the championship match the team defeated crosstown rival Boston University by a score of 8-1 to win the Serues Cup. Men’s Squash will lose senior Billy Hickey to graduation but are already looking forward to next season.
Women’s Club Squash excelled in the second half of their season, winning or playing close matches in almost all games during January and February. In February, the team traveled to Philadelphia to play Haverford and Bucknell without the #2 player on their ladder, making it so everyone had to play up a position for the matches. After a quick win over Bucknell, BC fell to Haverford 4-5 in matches, dropping BC from #29 in the country to #32. Luckily, the women had the opportunity to redeem themselves at Nationals. The Women’s Squash team ended College Squash Nationals by winning the consolation bracket of the Epps Cup. The women had an exciting match against Georgetown in the semi-finals, which they won 6-3. The three matches that they lost all went to five games, making them close nail biters.

Individual Highlights

Freshmen Nelsmarie Matos and Paige Hanauer proved to be huge assets for the BC Women’s Squash team. Despite a particularly difficult match schedule, Matos ended the season 9/14 in matches, and Hanauer ended the season 6/9 in matches. Not only did these two freshmen perform on the court, but they were far and away two of the most dedicated players on the team, rarely missing a practice.

Club Tennis had another successful year that began in mid-September and culminated in a trip to Nationals in Cary, North Carolina in April. In the beginning of the year, the team took 2nd for the second straight year at Battle of the Sections in Hilton Head, South Carolina losing a close final to Dartmouth. BCCT then took 3rd at New England Sectionals, qualifying them for the national tournament once again. Competitions at Harvard and Wisconsin in the fall prepared them for an important spring, as their goal was to build upon their performance at Nationals the year before. In the spring, BCCT came in 2nd in the Dartmouth Invitational, and lost in the semifinals in the Duel in the District tournament. This tournament, which was played outdoors in D.C, was extremely important for them in the tune-up to Nationals. They also participated in a charity event with Northeastern, which raised around $4000 for a local charity that supports tennis programs for underprivileged youth. Finally, BCCT won its first two matches in pool play at Nationals before losing to eventual finalist Minnesota. The team was able to win a few matches in silver bracket play, finishing 22nd out of the 64 qualified teams, the same result from the year before. The team lost some important seniors but continues to play at a high level and has big hopes for its young team moving forward.
This spring season for Men’s Club Ultimate was up and down, but ultimately ended on the highest note of the year. The cancellation of a proposed tournament in Denton, TX meant that the team’s first real competition of the year was at Queen City Tune Up in Charlotte, NC, which is regarded as one of the most competitive tournaments in the country. The men were able to defeat Davidson College, but losses in the other games only illustrated how far the team would need to go to reach the level they knew they could achieve. Garden State in Elmer, NJ was another difficult showing, and the team entered the postseason unsure of where they stood as a unit. However, they played well at Metro Boston Sectionals, finishing 3rd behind Tufts and Harvard (ranked 22nd and 23rd in the country, respectively) and comfortably qualified for New England Regionals. The Eagles went 2-1 in pool play on the first day of regionals, setting them up for a pre-quarterfinals matchup with Northeastern, who eliminated them from the postseason last year. In their first true elimination game, the team played their best game of the season and defeated Northeastern 15-7 in a dominating performance. This win brought the men to a quarterfinals contest with UMass, the top overall seed and one of the premier teams in the nation. In a game that nobody but the team expected to be a competition, they gave UMass one of their closest games, and at one point were leading 4-3, which was the only deficit UMass faced during the entire tournament. Despite a largely challenging season, their final two games were by far the two best of the year. When the stakes were highest, the men decided that they were the kind of team that would respond to adversity rather than crumble underneath it, and for that they are champions.
Despite the crazy winter in Boston, Women’s Club Ultimate had an amazing season. Throughout the spring the team continually pushed themselves to work harder, play better, and reach even higher goals than ever before. By supporting and encouraging each other through every tournament, the team ended its season incredibly proud of all it had accomplished. Flix began the real season with a tournament at the University of New Hampshire in which they finished undefeated. Coming off of this great win, they traveled to Georgia to compete in the College Terminus tournament where they continued to show an ability to compete at any level, finishing second after the two-day tournament. The following weekend, after winter weather caused the original tournament to be cancelled, the team traveled to New Jersey to compete with teams from other regions. After winning all games the first day, they ended in fourth place. Due to their strong showing in the regular season, the team moved through Sectionals and onto Regionals in Amherst, MA with a high seed. They put everything they had into each game at Regionals in order to play the best that they had all season. After winning four out of five round-robin games and managing to upset both MIT and Northeastern, they secured a spot in bracket play. Following a tough game against Tufts, the team ended its season in fifth place in the region, two places higher than originally seeded. By the end of the season, the team had grown immensely as a unit. They are very proud of how they played all season and are excited to continue to improve and push themselves to raise their standing even more in the coming seasons.
Men’s Club Volleyball had a strong season, playing in three tournaments throughout the spring at Brandeis, the Community College of Rhode Island, and UNH. The team also had an incredible showing at the Collegiate Club Volleyball National Championships in Kansas City, Missouri. With a nice balance of youth and veteran players, the team managed huge upsets against the University of Oregon and the University of Miami, and ended the tournament in 9th place for Division I AA. The team’s performance at Nationals truly highlighted their motivation to improve throughout the season.

Men’s Volleyball

Finished 9th in D1AA at NCVF Nationals
Women’s Club Volleyball finished a very exciting and fun 2014-15 season. In the fall, the team hosted its first home tournament at the Plex. Despite not performing as well as they’d hoped, it was a successful tournament and the team looks forward to hosting again in future years. The team played three regular season tournaments leading up to Nationals at Eastern Connecticut State, BU and Northeastern. On April 8-12, the team traveled to Kansas City, Missouri to play in the National Club Volleyball Tournament, hosted by the NCVF. At Nationals, the team played hard and left everything out on the court, finishing with a .500 record of 3-3. Many thanks to captains Jessica Opila and Nicole Bucaro, and to all the graduating seniors.
Women’s Club Water Polo had a strong 2015 season, finishing fourth in the New England Division with a 7-4 record. The first two tournaments saw outstanding team play, with the team coming out of each tournament 3-1 and just two close losses to the top two teams in the league. In the final tournament, BCCWP played three extremely hard fought games. Because BCWWP is made up of only fourteen girls, the small team relied on the experience of all the players during the games. While the returning players contributed many years of experience to the team, the freshmen also came in with many years of water polo under their belts. As a result of all of this previous experience, the team saw significant improvement over the season. This was seen especially on the game’s defensive side, as they played their best defense of the season in the second game of the final tournament against the top team in the league. With many returning players and three-year coach, the close-knit team plans to build on the improvement made toward the end of this past season and looks forward to the 2016 season, with hopes of making it even farther than in past years.

Finished 4th in CWPA New England Division
