2015 CORCORAN CHAIR CONFERENCE

Protestant, Catholic, Jew...Divorcing.

Fifty years ago, it was nearly impossible for Catholics to get annulments. In Orthodox Judaism, only husbands could grant divorces. In evangelical Protestantism, divorced men and women were treated as damaged goods.

Today, in all three traditions, times are changing. But how much? And how fast?

March 22, 2015
10am - 6pm

March 23, 2015
9am - Noon

Participants:

Susan Aranoff, AGUNAH International
Randall Balmer, Dartmouth College
Lisa Cahill, Boston College
Lois Dubin, Smith College
David P. Gushee, Mercer University
Mark Massa, Boston College
Rev. Mark O’Connell, Archdiocese of Boston
Mark Oppenheimer, New York Times and Boston College
Yona Reiss, Yeshiva University
Jeremy Stern, Organization for the Resolution of Agunot
Heather White, New College of Florida
Melissa Wilde, University of Pennsylvania

Heights Room, Corcoran Commons
Boston College
Chestnut Hill Campus
140 Commonwealth Avenue
Chestnut Hill, MA

This event is open to the public.

WWW.BC.EDU/CJLEARNING