COURSE DESCRIPTION
This seminar is designed primarily for seniors majoring or minoring in International Studies. During the semester, I hope the course will accomplish four goals:

1) to provide the group with a common vocabulary for analyzing the current international environment—politically, economically, socially and environmentally;
2) to encourage participants to think about future global relationships in an informed and constructive way;
3) to prepare students to write carefully on current topics relating to International Studies; and
4) to exchange views, debate, question, research—all in an atmosphere of mutual respect and trust.

REQUIREMENTS
Please print out and read the assigned readings for the day they are due, so that we may have a complete discussion with maximum participation each week. Class participation counts for 20% of your grade.

There are two major writing assignments: First, a 6-8 pp. paper (due November 27th) in which I will ask you to answer some questions relating to the readings. This paper counts for 15% of your grade. Second, your Final Paper in International Studies, which is due by 4:00 p.m. on Wednesday, December 16, 2009 in my mailbox. We shall be conferring about topics and lengths of these papers.

FOUR BOOKS (All four books will be held on Reserve at the O'Neill Library. Books may be taken out for 2 hours in the library and can be renewed if no one is waiting):

Electronic Readings:
Course readings are available to view online, download, and print on Blackboard Vista.

Attendance/Participation:
IN 530 is a seminar-format class that combines lecture with group discussion. Students’ final grade will depend, in part, on the quality of their participation in class discussion. Obviously, adequate participation requires regular attendance. You must be respectful of other’s viewpoints, experiences, orientation, etc. when discussing the concepts in this class. Debate is inevitable and useful, but be respectful. If you are not, you will be asked to withdraw from the course.

Each of you will be expected to keep abreast of the reading, prepare and make a presentation on materials from at least one of the scheduled sections. We have a good deal of material to cover, so the success of the seminar depends on the active participation of everyone. During the first meeting we shall organize ourselves and generate a schedule of presentations.

You must come prepared with a two-page write-up on the day’s reading every class. Make notes, comments, questions, and critiques of the readings. Readings should be studied before the class for which they are assigned. These assignments count for your attendance, and you may not turn them in late or in absentia from the class. These write-ups will make valuable notes for your exams and potential future work on globalization issues.

Assessment
All grades in IN 530 are based on the percentages shown in Table 1.

Student Responsibilities and Associated Grades.
Students are responsible for the work listed in Table 2.

You must come prepared with a one to two-page write-up on the day’s reading every class.

General Outline:
1. In the first paragraph, provide the general thread of argument, ideas, concepts, and/or themes that run through the readings for the week.
2. In the body of the paper, discuss in detail some of the key concepts and arguments. Discuss the readings in an integrative way; put the current readings in conversation with previous readings. Dig deep into the readings; do not provide a superficial summary. Rather, engage with the reading by giving a critical review of what you choose to focus on.
3. Then, give your view on some of these concepts. Which concepts/arguments make sense to you? Which do not? Use readings from previous weeks to support your claims.
4. This assignment will take some time to master, but it is a valuable skill, so work hard at it.
5. Readings should be studied before the class for which they are assigned. These assignments also count for your attendance, and you may not turn them in late or in absentia from the class. These write-ups will make valuable notes for your exams and potential future work on environmental issues.

Students are also required to lead the discussion with a 10-15 minute formal presentation at least twice.
