The 2013 Severyn T. Bruyn Award

The Severyn T. Bruyn Award for Outstanding Scholarship in Social Economy and Social Justice is awarded each year to a Ph.D. or MA student in the BC sociology department whose written work merits this distinction. Scholarly work to be honored by this award may include outstanding sole-authored papers on any sociological topic developed for publication or presentation at professional meetings or submitted as coursework. This includes area exam papers as well as MA papers or theses.

For the 2013 Bruyn award, we will be considering papers that were submitted, presented, or published between November 2012 and October 2013. Students may nominate their own papers, or student papers may be nominated by faculty. They will be evaluated based on scholarly excellence.

The award comes with a $300 honorarium. Additionally, this is a great opportunity for students to get recognition for their hard work, and to put an impressive item on their curriculum vitae.

I'm writing now to solicit nominations by faculty and self-nominations by graduate students. The deadline is 5 p.m. on Monday, November 4. Please email a copy to bruyn@sarkisian.net —no printed copies please.

Please contact Natasha if you have any questions.
