Faculty Grant Awards
2016 – 2017 Academic Year

The Winston Center for Leadership and Ethics engages students, faculty, staff, and alumni in the intellectual exploration of leadership and ethics in business and society.

Description:

In celebration of its 10th Anniversary, the Winston Center welcomes applications for grants up to $7500 for programs on leadership and ethics of interest to faculty and their departments. Funds are available to cover speaker honorarium, travel, meals, and other expenses associated with the proposed event. We can envision a variety of formats—a single speaker, a panel, a mini-conference—and we are especially interested in events that lend themselves to student participation and, where appropriate, their involvement in planning.

Some illustrative examples:

- A department hosts a colloquy between elected officials and faculty and students on the ethics of campaign financing.
- A scholar explores the rhetoric of leadership in self-help books and contemporary media.
- An artist performs her work linking the struggle for racial justice and dance and music.
- A panel explores the ethics of informed consent in innovation therapies.

As these sketches indicate, we hope that every department will consider how its concerns intersect with those of the Winston Center.

Eligibility:

All BC faculty members are welcome to submit a proposal.

Application Procedures:

Faculty should submit:

- A one-page description of project
- A one-page statement of its relevance to leadership and ethics
- A budget

Deadline:

Application materials should be submitted via email to winston.center@bc.edu by Friday, April 8, 2016. Decisions will be made by mid-May 2016.
