Still looking for a course for the fall?
Business and Professional Speaking (MHON112602)

Monday, 9:00 am – 11:30 am with Professor Stacy Schwartz

This course is designed to be an introduction to the theory, composition, delivery, and criticism of speeches. Individual as well as group speaking assignments will be used to help the student become more comfortable and confident in speaking situations. The following areas will be developed: the uses of evidence, the development of clear organizational structure, and the development of a dynamic presentation style. The student will also examine speaking from the audience perspective, and learning ways to analyze and evaluate the oral presentations of others.

Attend Business Today Conference!

Business Today's 42nd Annual International Conference. Each year, we hold an all-expenses paid, 3-day business conference for undergraduate students at the Grand Hyatt in New York City. This year the conference will take place on November 20-22, 2016.

Focusing the impact of the Millennial Generation on the business world, this year's conference promises to be better than ever! Participants at past conferences had the chance to meet outstanding executives (including Muhtar Kent, CEO of Coca Cola; Stephen Schwarzman, Chairman and CEO of Blackstone; Mark Thomson, President and CEO of The New York Times), participate in a case study competition that has previously been organized by Ernst & Young and Deloitte, and visit the headquarters of some of the largest companies in America. Business Today, a nonprofit founded by Steve Forbes in 1968, will cover ALL expenses (including international travel and lodging).

Still looking for work experience this summer?

Founded by two BC students, www.theatriumnews.com is a student run, business-focused new site. Its goal is to educate the minds of amateur investors, businessmen, and entrepreneurs on topics encompassing global business and the world economy.

Any student interested in the opportunity to be able to work from home on their own schedules and add valuable experience to their resume should email chris.jewett@theatriumnews.com. Writing, editing, marketing, and potential leadership opportunities are available.
