Head of School Position - Pope Francis High School, Springfield, MA

Pope Francis High School will be a new regional Catholic high school in Springfield, MA. A predecessor school was leveled by a rare tornado a few years ago. In addition, the Diocese is consolidating a couple of existing schools into the new high school to form a regional school. The construction for Pope Francis High School has been fully funded and will commence the Autumn of 2016.

The Springfield region and its Catholic community have a proud history of building community and a strong commitment to educating its young people. The mission of the school is excellence in education as well as the formation of faith, strong values, community and leadership. The new school will serve a broad range of students, both culturally and socio-economically.

The Head of School will be the chief executive of the school and will hire a supporting Principal and management team. The woman or man running the school will start in 2016. The search is starting now with the objective of hiring the right leader by March of 2016. This will be a great opportunity for an outstanding leader to found, build a management team and to run this new high school.
