Dear BCARF members,

It was wonderful to see you at the annual banquet, or at the programs, or at the seminars, or at the book groups, or at the museum tours, and/or just shuffling along the street. I think we can say we have had a good year, thanks to all of us.

Attending a meeting is, I think, an excellent contribution to our social capital. And special thanks go to Jean Mooney for managing the banquet, Judith Wilt the programs, David Northrup the seminars, Charles Landraitis the budget (just approved!), Joe Duffy for the handbook (about to be completed), Peter Olivieri for the web home (see the new Photo Galleries!), Marjorie Sardella for the Photo Galleries, Rosemary Krawczyk and Jean O’Neil for endless help and advice (and consent!). Peter is working on a new surprise that I think you will enjoy.

Welcome to Paul Spagnoli our new vice president, oh brave soul. We received wonderful continuing help from the staff at the Center for Centers; nary was a lunch missed or a banquet gaffed. And a special recognition to those who made discerning comments during the year at the programs (last prize for best comment was a diaper), seminars, book clubs, all building up the communal consciousness or some such (was this an Origen heresy?). Thanks to those who applied for the new Faculty Grants.

Thanks so much to Pat DeLeeuw who has wonderfully supported us and now is joining us.

Have a wonderful summer and fall. And if you have any suggestions, please convey them!

Sincerely,

Dennis Taylor
President, BCARF

RETIREE NEWS

Hugh Ault, Law, presented a BCARF Research Seminar on Trends in Global Education. He travels throughout the year enjoying Boston from August to December, Paris from January to July, and Stockholm in August.

Richard Clifford, S.J., Theology, “Though emeritus, I taught one and a half courses in the spring at the STM; one a synthetic overview of major biblical themes and the other a weekly course in Hebrew for intermediate students. I’ve written several shorter articles for scholarly publications, but most of my time has been given to editing a new one-volume commentary on the Bible, Old and New Testaments. To be published by Paulist Press, New York, it will appear in late 2017. I also do weekend supply at St. Margaret Mary in Westwood, and live with Jesuits studying at Boston College. I will teach again next year.”

John Dacey, Education, has published two new books, out in May, 2016 from Houghton/Mifflin: Your Anxious Child, 2nd edition and Your Child’s Social and Emotional Wellbeing. John addressed Wounded Warriors in June and March. He has been elected Chair for the Social and Emotional Learning Alliance of Massachusetts (SAM).

Harvey D. Egan, S.J., Theology, titles his report “So-Called Retirement.” He reports: “This has been yet another busy and productive year. My chapter for a book on mysticism will finally see the light of day, now that Crossroad has a new editor. I’ve also done book-length evaluations for Oxford U Press, Cambridge U Press, and Routledge, as well as several article evaluations for a few periodicals. Much of my time is spent correcting the written English of our French-speaking African and one Chinese SJs. One dissertation was well over 600 pages. A month ago I was in Rockland, MD doing a twelve-lecture audio visual recording on Christian mysticism for NowYouKnowMedia. I am currently preparing another series on the overview of Karl Rahner’s theology. I also have a lecture in progress on Ignatian mysticism to be given at the Clavius group meeting at Holy Cross the end of June. Homily work and presiding at Mass here at our lovely chapel at St. Mary’s, the Poor Clares, and the Franciscan nuns is yet another aspect of my priesthood. Pope Francis says that homilies are a torture for those giving and receiving. I have not found that so. I find it very rewarding. Both the St. Mary’s setting and the congregation are exceptional. I also meet with several advisees monthly concerning spiritual direction. Photography work continues. I recently restored several photos shot in the 1920s—and framed them. Astonishing what Photoshop can accomplish! I’ve also done a number of collages for the SJs who preside at our Friday community Masses. Then there are those who ask me to enhance photos they’ve taken. It has been a great blessing to give a course in theology to a prisoner incarcerated for forty-one years, for a crime he did not commit. He is self-taught in Greek and Latin. He reads voraciously. I am sometimes asked to fix computer, TV, and printer issues, when our techs are not here. My grand-nephew built an outdoor brick oven last summer, so we’ve done pizza and Indian cooking together. He’s only twenty, but already a skilled cook. My pasta alla carbonara is always a hit—and it is my own recipe, improved after many years of trial and error. I work out at GymIL at least 4x/weekly—newly improved, after a massive flood shut them down for a month and required major renovations. Also, I walk every evening, regardless of the weather. Even winter 2015. Winter 2016 was a wimp!”

Peter Gray, Psychology, “I retired from teaching and administrative duties 14 years ago. Since then, all of my research, writing, and speaking has been play and most of it has been about play. My mission in life now is to make life better for children—to free them from the yoke of too much boring and meaningless schooling and bring play and self-directed exploration back into their lives. My academic publications over the past 12 months include the following: (1) A chapter entitled “Children’s Natural Ways of Learning Still Work, Even for the Three R’s,” in Evolutionary Perspectives on Child Development and Education (Springer); (2) a chapter entitled “Mother Nature’s Pedagogy,” in press, in Palgrave International Handbook of Alternative Education; (3) a chapter entitled “Self-Directed Education” in the Oxford Research Encyclopedia of Education; (4) Two research articles (with Gina Riley) based on our study of grown unschoolers (home-schoolers who grew up in charge of their own education), published in the journal Other Education; and (5) an article entitled “Rousseau’s Errors,” in the journal Issues in Early Education. I’ve given 32 invited presentations over the past 12 months. Among these are the welcoming speech at the annual US Play Coalition Conference; the keynote address at an international symposium on democratic education in Prague; a plenary address at the Missouri State Public Affairs Conference; and keynote addresses at several state-wide early education conferences and homeschooling conferences. I’ve been leading a small team of researchers in designing a large-scale follow-up study of graduates of different kinds of high schools, which vary in the degree of autonomy that they afford to students. We’re in the process of applying for a grant to support the study and hope to begin the research in January, 2017. I’ve also been leading another team in development of a nonprofit organization called the Alliance for Self-Directed Education, the mission of which is to reverse the current societal trends that have restricted children’s and adolescents’ opportunities to discover and pursue their own interests. My book, Free to Learn (Basic Books) continues to sell well, now in its paperback edition, and new translations continue to appear. Over the past 12 months, German, Polish, and Spanish (Latin American) translations have appeared, and I’m told that translation rights have been sold for Korean, Bulgarian, Turkish, Russian, and French. These add to the two Chinese translations and the Romanian and Italian translation completed previously. My textbook, Psychology (an introductory psychology textbook) is now in its 7th edition, with co-author David Bjorklund. I continue to appear on quite a few radio and television news and talk shows. Among those I’ve been on in the past year are Kara Miller’s Innovation Hub (WGBH- NPR), Fox News, and Fox and Friends. My work has been referred to in many popular publications this year, including the New York Times, the Wall Street Journal, and the Atlantic. I continue to be a regular blogger for Psychology Today Magazine, with at least one new essay each month. My blog (Freedom to Learn) now contains 131 posts (since 2008) with a total of more than 7.6 million unique views. Most of these posts have been republished on other sites and many have appeared in print media. A post that I published this past September (on the declining resilience of college students) was republished, in part, in the Wall Street Journal’s “Notable and Quotable.” I’m very much enjoying my new home in Norfolk, MA., on Highland Lake. Every day that I’m home I go out for at least an hour, to kayak on the lake, take a bike ride down one of the many country lanes here, or walk (or, ski, in winter) in the woods with my dog. I’ve created a great vegetable garden. Life is good.”

Lois Haggerty, nursing, reports she achieved Life Master in duplicate bridge (a card game) sponsored by the American Contract Bridge League in Nov. 2015.

Lynda Lytle Holmstrom, sociology, “I keep professionally involved, including supervising independent student research projects (one of these received the Sociology Department’s prize for the outstanding senior honors thesis for this year) and making conference presentations (e.g. on being department chair, on semi-retirement). I also traveled to the North Carolina Outer Banks (Kitty Hawk and Kill Devil Hills) and back home to the Pacific (including visits to the Port Townsend Wooden Boat Festival’s “Sail By” and Whidbey Island.)”

Sanford Katz, law, completed a paperback revision of his book, Family Law in America 2d edition, which was published by Oxford University Press. He is the Editor-in-Chief of a Family Law series for Brill Publishing Co., a legal publisher whose headquarters is in Leyden, The Netherlands.

Margaret Kenney, education, “2015–2016 has/is a challenging time for me. In the summer of 2015 my book Number Treasury ^3 was published and I gave some workshops for mathematics teachers. Then in the fall I spoke at the Association of Teachers of Mathematics in Portland, ME and took a delightful cruise with my BC Classmates of 1957 to Nova Scotia and New Brunswick. My lifestyle changed on Friday, 13 November when I was diagnosed with AML Leukemia. Since then I have been in the very capable hands of Dana Farber/B Brigham and Women’s Cancer Institute. This journey is not easy and is filled with up and down periods. However, I have a positive outlook and determination to soldier on.” Editor’s Note: “Peg” Kenney died July 5, 2016 after sending this message in June. A beautiful tribute is on BC Info July 7 and another sent to BCARF Members July 11, 2016.

Peter Kugel, management, reports what he calls “lots of ordinary things that were fun.” “We [My wife Judi and I] did a lot of traveling in the 2015-16 academic year: short road trips in the U.S. (Philadelphia, Tanglewood, Wiliamstown, Clam Island in Connecticut, see grandchildren in Maryland) and two trips overseas. We went to Eastern Europe: Krakow—I recommend the underground museum—Prague, Budapest, Lake Bled in Slovenia, Plitvice Lakes in Croatia, amazing. We went to Panama for our last trip with our son Seth as the New York Times’s Frugal Traveler. I think I took a lot of trips because my travel days are coming to an end for a variety of reasons having to do with age. I took courses in biochemistry (amazing how much is now known), counterfactual history (more interesting that what I did in high school, the “second machine age,” the second part of Goethe’s Faust (Impenetrable). I sat in on Sandel’s course on “What Money Can’t Buy.” He manages to get discussions going in classes of 700 students. Did some volunteering, read books, exercised, went to concerts, got older, had fun, still happy to be on this side of the grass.”

Vera Lee, romance languages, “I’ve been writing a graphic novel about physicist, Victor, his robot, Roger, and their adventures in tracking down the villainous J.J. Schicklgruber and his alluring humanoid Loretta Lamour. Delighted to have received a retired faculty grant to help with expenses. I am working with a young cartoonist, Hector Torres, trained at the New England Art Institute. On the bleak side, on May 1, I slipped on the way to speak on my jazz book in Jeff Flagg’s class. Not having his cell number, worried about his waiting in the rain for me, I drove to B.C. with a fractured hip—the show must go on!—but Jeff got me into an ambulance. I’m mending after the operation and rehab, but it’s June already and when will I garden? When will I drive? When will I walk like a person? Or dance? Ay!

Ramsay Liem, Psychology, reports he “screened his film, Memory of Forgotten War (www.mufilms.org/films/memory-of-forgotten-war/#.VzjXNKpTTyw) at the DMZ International Film Festival in Paju, South Korea this past fall. The festival curated a special program of films in remembrance of 70 years of Korean division that included special seminars in which I participated. Motivated by audience response, I am currently exploring collaboration with Korean scholars to share Korean and Korean American oral histories of the Korean War. With colleagues at UCLA, UC Santa Cruz, UC Berkeley, and MuFilms, I completed a new online archive, Legacies of the Korean War (www.legaciesofthekoreanwar.org) that launched at UC Berkeley in September. The archive is fully bilingual and includes film, video, audio and text recordings of memories of the Korean War by survivors now residing in the United States. The site also includes an extensive timeline, resource bibliography, and collection of articles by U.S. and Korea based scholars. We are currently promoting the archive as an educational and community resource encouraging users to wrestle with the human costs of a war still un-ended after 63 years. Related to these activities, I recently published “Korean Americans are Reclaiming their History through Culture” with Christine Hong, Foreign Policy in Focus, October, 2015. I also presented the paper, “Korean American Critical Remembering,” at this year’s Association of Asian American Studies Conference in Miami. Currently, I’m helping to produce a new film by Deann Borshay Liem inspired by 30 women international peacemakers who crossed the DMZ last May from north to south, calling for peace and reconciliation (www.womencrossdmz.org).”

Larry Meile, Management, “This is the first year that I have not partaken in some activity at the Carroll School. Usually I judge for the Dianne Weiss competition and attend the BCVC events (Now Start@Shea). These have naturally evolved over time and the people running these events change so others now fill my shoes. It is time to move on. We are in the process of decommisioning our home in Natick with the intention of moving back to our homeland in southern Wisconsin. We have purchased a place there, near Edgerton, very close to our riverfront cottage. We will be taking a first truck full of things when we head out there for the summer and will take another truck full next spring when we head out. Winters are largely spent down in the Villages. This last winter we were able to spend two months in New Zealand with our daughter who lives with her husband in Christchurch. We got to do a lot of sightseeing all over the southern island, making it a lovely vacation.”

Jean Mooney, Education, “For the past two years I have been volunteering at St. Columbkille’s Partnership School in Brighton. Although the main focus is participating on the Student Support team that addresses the issues of students at risk academically and/or socially, I have begun to recognize the value of high quality after school programs and their potential for early career education. This year the ARF grant allowed me to support the creation of an Engineering Club for Girls. A fantastic science teacher made it so exciting there is now a waiting list for the fall. Of course, the boys want their own club. Making it a reality will be a priority for the Fall. A second priority will be recruiting volunteers to support the effort. In another part of my life, that part that had to wait for retirement, I am enjoying the intellectual and social aspects of the Association: the Book Club, Research Seminar, Program Meetings, Executive Committee—who knew retirement could be so much fun!”

David Northrup, History, has been busy with organizations, research and writing, and travel. In addition to serving as member-at-large on the Executive Committee of the BCARF, he has coordinated its Faculty Research Seminar this past year. He has also been active in the New England Regional World History Assn., presenting papers at its Fall and Spring symposia. Having mercifully escaped election as president of NERWHA, he was persuaded to accept a seat on its Executive Council, which then elevated him to the organization’s vice-presidency. In May he spoke about globalization to the enthusiastic students in two Advanced Placement World History classes at Weston High School. A chapter he authored for the fourth volume of the Cambridge World History of Slavery is forthcoming, as are two chapters in the Oxford Illustrated World History. At the moment he is writing a book on myths of African history, due at the publisher in January. It’s not been all work and no play. He and Nancy visited Central Europe while on a Danube cruise in September-October, visited relatives in California in February, and made a road trip in March to visit friends and relatives along the US East Coast. A two-week stay in Amsterdam (Netherlands) is planned for June, followed by participation in the annual meeting of the World History Association in Ghent (Belgium) in July.

Dia Philippides, CLASSICAL STUDIES, is continuing her collaboration on the ‘CENSUS of Modern Greek Literature’ – with Wim Bakker (Prof. Emer., Univ. of Amsterdam) and colleagues in the BC Libraries. This international bibliographical project aims at providing greater familiarity with modern Greek literature (from A.D. 1200 to the present) to speakers of English, by recording all the translations and essays that have been published in English. The collection (now classified as ‘Big Data!’) will be published online on the BC Libraries eScholarship platform, under Open Access, as a freely downloadable pdf and a searchable, extensible database. Keep your eyes out for its appearance, likely in Fall 2017!

Dennis Sardella, CHEMISTRY AND PRESIDENTIAL SCHOLARS, and his wife Marjorie describe a busy year. Last September Dennis gave an invited lecture on icons at Rockport Music’s community outreach program, and the evening program also included a performance of Russian liturgical and folk music by Lyra, a Russian choral group from St. Petersburg. In April of this year Marjorie and Dennis gave a joint presentation entitled “A Virtual Pilgrimage In France. A Journey In Faith” to the Sisters of St. Chretienne in Marlboro. It featured Marjorie’s photos of some of our favorite churches in Paris, Chartres and Mont St.-Michel. “Our oldest grandchild, David Rawlinson, a Perspectives major, graduated from A&S in May; three others graduated from high school and will be entering college in September, which will make five attending college in the fall. We continue to enjoy traveling and last summer spent three leisurely weeks in Paris, with day trips to Chartres, Chantilly and Mont St. Michel. Marjorie continues as the unofficial photographer for the Association of Retired Faculty and maintains a photo blog on her Facebook page, www.facebook.com/BeauxRegardsPhotographicArt. We are also active in various aspects of ministry in our church and are members of the editorial board, and contributors to its Parish Life newsletter.”

Cathy Schneider, ECONOMICS, reports she and her husband earned lots of frequent flier miles this past year. Highlights of their travels: Yellowstone and Grand Teton National Parks, a cruise along the Pacific coast of Costa Rica and through the Panama Canal (thankfully, no mosquitoes), Sante Fe, and a Danube River cruise from Budapest to Passau, Germany, with a side trip to Prague. “One of the added bonuses was that the trip to Costa Rica was in mid-Feb, so we missed that brutally cold spell! I’m feeling lucky because the winter before, I went to SC for two months with a friend whose older horse I ride (she took her younger one south to continue training over the winter and the older one went along as a companion), so we missed almost all the snow!”

Paul Spagnoli, HISTORY, “Over the past year Pam and I have continued to enjoy retirement. Probably the year’s high point was an extended art tour of northern Spain with Road Scholar early last summer, hitting Madrid, Toledo, Cuenca, Burgos, Bilbao, San Sebastián, and Barcelona. We also took a number of shorter trips to Maine, the Berkshires, and Sani-bel Island, among other places. I have listened to lots of good music, walked fifty miles a week, read many good books, and generally indulged the retiree’s opportunity to let my attention wander wherever it pleased. Reading highlights included Elena Ferrante’s quartet of Neapolitan novels, The House of Mirth (my first Edith Wharton since Ethan Frome in high school), Jane Gardam’s Old Filth trilogy, and several books each by Patrick Modiano and Tom Drury. Next year promises to be even better, owing to the imminent arrival of our first grandchild.”

Rachel E. Spector, NURSING: “2015-2016 was an exciting year. My husband and I visited Alicante, Spain in October. We continue to live from December–March in Honolulu where I volunteer for the Hawaiian Opera Theater and do wigs and makeup. I taught my Capstone course first semester and enjoyed contact with the millennials, a different sort of student, to say the least. The revisions for the 4th edition of my book, Cultural Diversity in Health and Illness, were completed and the book is due to be published in September, 2016. In addition, I published an article, “Cultural Competence” and a memoir to Dr. Carmen Chamizo in the recent issue of Cultura de los Cuidados, 1er Cuatrimestre, 2016, * Año XX - N.° 44. This Journal is published by the Department of Nursing, University of Alicante, Alicante, Spain. The article, in English, is available at http://rua.ua.es/dspace/bit-stream/10045/54588/1/Cult_Cuid_44_01.pdf”

Rebecca Valette, Romance Languages reports that she and Jean-Paul curated an exhibit of their Navajo weavings with ceremonial themes at the Mount Holyoke College Art Museum followed by a seminar for faculty members from the Five Colleges to let them know more about the forthcoming exhibit so that they might include it in their courses and gave the opening lecture for the exhibit. Links to these activities are: Exhibit: https://artmuseum.mtholyoke.edu/exhibition/dancers-nightway; Exhibition and lecture: https://muse.mtholyoke.edu/?c=235&k=c8795e1219; Faculty seminar: https://muse.mtholyoke.edu/?c=235&k=c8795e1219

“We are finishing up the manuscript of our book, Navajo Weavings with Ceremonial Themes: An Historical Perspective on a Secular Art. The book is scheduled for publication by Schiffer Books in Spring 2017.

Of our eight grandchildren, three are graduating this spring from their respective schools: Jean-Pierre Valette, with an MD from UC San Diego; Esmé Valette with a BA from Middlebury College; and Nico Valette with a diploma from Belmont Hill School.

Additional note: I am absolutely delighted that Nannette Caniff, dedicated humanitarian and creator of the Saint Boniface Haiti Foundation, was awarded an Honorary Doctorate at BC Commencement this year. Dennis Taylor, who had also been to Fond des Blancs, Haiti, in the past, gave his support to the nomination that Fr. Frank Herman and I proposed to the Trustees.”

Judith Wilt, English, “I’m enjoying myself traveling a bit more these days. In December 2015, for instance, I took a sudden jaunt to New York City and visited the “Hamilton” box office in person—lucked out for a single ticket at a matinee the next day and had a thrilling experience. Best afternoon in a theater since doing the same thing almost 30 years ago in London for six straight hours of “Nicholas Nickleby.” Took a similar sudden flyer to Las Vegas in April 2016 with an offer of four complementary nights at a resort casino and brought home enough money to pay up the following week for stupidly rear-ending a patient lady in the car ahead of me while entering too quickly the traffic on Route 9 East: luck is a lady who goes both ways. I am currently signed up for two September weeks in London followed by attendance at a conference in Venice on the works of my favorite historical novelist, Dorothy Dunnett. Since the conference group is following Dunnett’s hero Nicholas de Fleury onto the grounds of the Arsenale of the 14th century Venetian (now the 21st century Italian) Fleet for our farewell dinner, we are all having to send passport jpegs months in advance to the organizer, courtesy of post 9/11 security concerns. But seriously, I taught a one-credit English Department course on “Storytelling about Catholicism” this spring with some classics from Flannery O’Connor and Robert Stone and Mary Gordon and something new from an Iraq war veteran named Phil Klay, which moved me to decide to teach a one-credit on “War Stories” in the spring of 2017. Some writing projects are bearing fruit: I published a comparison of the historical novels of Dorothy Dunnett and Diana Gabaldon in the Dorothy Dunnett Society Magazine, and an essay on “Reading the Arts in the Brontës” in the Blackwell’s Companion to the Brontës that came out in June, and had an essay on “Les Misérables,” “Sweeney Todd,” and Interview with the Vampire accepted for a special issue of (believe it or not) The Journal of Neo-Victorian Studies. I’m now working on an essay on the representation of abortion in two contemporary plays and a film (“Grandma”).”

Professor Carlo Rotella and retiree Dennis Sardella have a conversation following the November 2015 program meeting on Journalism and Academia.

Research Seminars are held in the first floor conference room at 3 Lake Street from 12-2:00 p.m.
RETIRE FACULTY GRANT PROPOSALS INVITED FOR 2016-17

A limited amount of funds has been made available by the Provost’s Office for the purpose of providing grants for projects undertaken by members of the Boston College Association of Retired Faculty. Grants will support travel and expenses for research, lectures, conferences, education, publishing, volunteer work and/or other significant activities carried out directly by the applicant. Normally a grant will be from $100 to $1,000 per person. A committee appointed by the Executive Committee of the Boston College Association of Retired Faculty will review all applications and make the awards.

Each April an announcement will be made calling for proposals for research projects for the following academic budgetary year (June 1-May 31).

Projects should be designed to be completed at least by the end of the academic budgetary year following the year of the award. A brief report on the outcome of the funded effort should be prepared and submitted to the President of the Boston College Association of Retired Faculty.

APPLICATIONS SHOULD INCLUDE THE FOLLOWING:
• Cover sheet
• Description of proposed project (two pages maximum)
  » Objectives for the proposed work and its significance
  » Relationship of proposed project objectives to your longer term goals
  » Relationship to other work by you or others
• Proposed budget (one page maximum)

VOLUNTEER OPPORTUNITIES

There are many ways in which retired faculty can volunteer both at Boston College and in the surrounding community. Listed below are a few of these opportunities.

If you have suggestions for other ways in which retired faculty might contribute their knowledge, expertise, and service, please contact BCARF. To get involved with any of the activities listed below, contact the person listed.

COMMENCEMENT

Contact the Office of the Vice President and University Secretary at devino@bc.edu indicating the preferred assignment. There are orientation meetings shortly before commencement.

Retired faculty volunteering in 2016 included Phillip DiMattia, Alec Peck, David Northrup, Ron Pawlicek, and Rachel Spector; with Rosemary Krawczyk serving as a university hostess.

IGNATIAN VOLUNTEER CORPS

New England Ignatian volunteers are mature men and women, open to participating in year-long spiritual development program, which includes service to the community. Volunteers commit to the equivalent of two days per week of service, over a ten month period; meet monthly with a spiritual director; participate in two days of reflection, one overnight retreat, and monthly meetings of the volunteers. At these meetings, volunteers share their reflections and service experiences.

For information, contact Dave Hinchen, IVC Regional Director, 31 Fairview Street, Roslindale, MA 02131, 617-327-2292, dhinchen@ivcusa.org, www.ivcusa.org.

SOAR 55

(SERVICE OPPORTUNITIES AFTER REACHING 55)

SOAR 55 is a volunteer-connector organization for adults aged 55 and older who would like to share their professional and experience-based skills with local public and nonprofit organizations that need help in Newton and Metro West. Assignments range from tutoring children, mentoring inmates, to organizational leadership roles. (KAlbert@soars55.org)

“MODEL” PATIENTS

The Connell School of Nursing is preparing to invite interested retired faculty to act as patients in a simulation exercise. Training will enable participants to use scripts to enact a patient role while being interviewed by a student. The student in the simulation situation will learn to interact and to elicit significant information. (jean.oneil@bc.edu)

CONVERSATIONAL PARTNERS WITH INTERNATIONAL GRADUATE STUDENTS

Many opportunities exist to host or mentor an international student. For more information, contact Rosemary Krawczyk (rmk1105@yahoo.com). Anyone willing to be a holiday host should contact Adrienne Nussbaum at 617-552-8005.
