

NEW DIRECTIONS IN AFRICAN DIASPORA RESEARCH

Working the Dope Hustle in Post-WWII Cities

Professor Rhonda Williams presents her exploration of the geographical manifestation and political economy of local narcotic hustles. She seeks to poignantly convey the ways that those constructed as “outsiders” in the United States – whether immigrant or native-born, citizens or non-citizens – revealed and negotiated political and economic hierarchies endemic to the nation. Dr. Williams is the author of The Politics of Public Housing: Black Women’s Struggles Against Urban Inequality (Oxford University Press, 2004), and is an associate professor of History at Case Western Reserve University.
