PARENT IMPACT REPORT 2021–2022

WELCOME—AND WELCOME BACK!

Dear fellow parents,

In

May, we celebrated our son, Miles, as he graduated with the Boston College Class of 2022. Over the past few years, we have watched him learn and enjoy his time at the Heights in so many ways. From professors to friends, his education was enriched by the people he encountered and the opportunities he was given to explore and expand his interests. Miles' experience was cura personalis in action—care for the whole person, mind, body, and spirit—the framework for a Jesuit education.

As BC parents and as members of the Parents Leadership Council, we hope you understand how the BC community of faculty, administrators, peers, and families come together uniquely to support our Eagles. You are an integral part of your student's experience at the Heights.

The families you will read about on these pages share this dedication to their Eagles and to BC. They see their children aspire to grow intellectually and compassionately, with the will to live in service for others.

As co-chairs of the Parents Leadership Council, we have met many of you this past year. You continue to impress us with your enthusiasm and deep commitment to the Heights. Most of all, we are grateful that the PLC is part of your BC tradition.

The next chapter of our own BC story begins now, as our daughter, Rachel, joins the Class of 2026. We hope to see you—and welcome our new members—this fall!

Warmly,

STRENGTHENING OUR FOUNDATION

All FY22 data represented is sourced from BC Advancement Information Systems.

A man and a woman are smiling and posing for a photo outdoors. The man, on the left, has grey hair and is wearing a light blue and white checkered button-down shirt and khaki pants. The woman, on the right, has brown hair, wears sunglasses, a white sleeveless dress with black buttons and a belt, and a watch. They are standing on a green lawn with a brick building and trees in the background. A quote is overlaid on the image in orange boxes, and the name of the person who provided the quote is in a blue box at the bottom left.

LOURDES PARDO, P'19, '22, '24

UNITY OF HEART, MIND, AND SOUL

Lourdes and Jaime-Alberto Pardo, P'19, '22, '24

CORAL GABLES, FLORIDA

Most Boston College students want to have something in their room that reminds them of home—family photos, a memento from a special trip, or a homemade batch of mom's cookies. But when brothers Felipe '22 and Javier '24 Pardo wanted a piece of Miami at the Heights, they didn't ask their parents Lourdes and Jaime to mail more tchotchkes. They asked for a Caja China.

Measuring about four feet long, this outdoor roasting oven uses coals and hot air to cook meat, such as lamb and pork—exactly what the Pardo boys were homesick for: Cuban-style roast pork, just like their parents used to make at home.

Last fall's pig roasts in the Mods are now part of BC history. And while the Pardo boys have left their mark on the Heights, the Heights has also made its mark on the family.

All three Pardo sons are Eagles, with older brother Alberto '19 leading the way. And their parents have seen the benefits of a Jesuit education on each one. "Developing the whole person and providing multidisciplinary education that integrates all aspects of a student's life enables young men and women to grow and discover where they can make a difference," says Lourdes. "The combination of cura personalis, academic rigor, and social awareness makes for a well-rounded, outstanding citizen of the world."

Their sons have thrived in BC's Mission and Ministry programs. They've participated in retreats and mission trips, led student groups, and served their community. "I've seen what a difference these programs have made in their lives and how they have grown," says Jaime-Alberto. Lourdes agrees—and it's where they direct their philanthropy. "Mission and Ministry sets a tone for the University," she says. "These experiences have shaped them, creating space for them to doubt, reflect, and discern what it means to be a man for others, lead a fulfilled life, find a place in the world, and discover what brings happiness. It's priceless."

Last fall, Felipe Pardo '22 impressed family and friends with his Cuban-style roast pork, cooked and served in the Mods.

CURA PERSONALIS

Jen Murphy Parker '92 and Vic Parker, P'24

HILLSBOROUGH, CALIFORNIA

Nearly everyone has a favorite teacher, one who made them feel valued, heard, and supported. Sometimes it's a teacher who made a difficult subject seem manageable, or one who made them laugh.

And then there are those extraordinary educators whose impact on a particular student—and sometimes an entire family—is truly one in a million. Such is the case for Jen Murphy Parker '92 and Vic Parker, P'24, who were touched by their son Lew's special education teacher, Mrs. Barbara Nelson. "For five years, she cared so deeply about our son Lew, his education, and his journey as a person," says Jen. "All four of our kids—Lew, Anna, Gus, and Cat—grew up knowing that an amazing teacher can make a profound difference in the life of a student who receives special education services, and in the wellbeing of the whole family."

Today, inspired by that special bond, Lew's older sister, Anna '24, is pursuing a degree in Boston College's Lynch School of Education and Human Development.

At BC, Anna has found everything she wanted in her college experience: the specific educational track, a close community, school spirit, and athletics. In addition to her classes, Anna serves as co-president of the Campus School volunteers at Boston College. The Campus School educates students ages three to 21 who face complex healthcare issues and have unique learning needs.

Jen and Vic support the Lynch School, inspired by their daughter's experiences and Dean Stanton Wortham, who spoke with parents during Family Weekend last year. "What struck me most was when he said that since teachers are the developers of people, and people are what make or break a society, 'aren't we as educators doing the most important job there is?' Anna has told us that what she loves about her professors is that they are focused on educating the whole person, meaning that along with building knowledge, they teach students about what it means to be a positive member of society," Jen says.

Vic agrees. "Boston College has been a perfect fit for Anna," he says. "It's been exciting to see the energy she puts in everything she does at BC."

Family means everything to Jen and Vic Parker.

Anna's professors are focused on educating the whole person, meaning that along with building knowledge, they teach students about what it means to be a positive member of society."

it has ever been.”

BRIGID DOHERTY '96, P '25

AGENTS OF CHANGE

Brigid Doherty '96 and Rene Jones '86, P'25

BUFFALO, NEW YORK

Both parties agreed to the terms scribbled on a cocktail napkin nearly 20 years ago.

He wanted to stay in Buffalo; she loved Boston. So they made a deal. If he became chief financial officer in two years, they would raise a family in Buffalo. If he didn't, they would make the City on a Hill their home.

He became CFO in 20 months—and they've been in Buffalo ever since.

Boston College alumni Brigid Doherty '96 and Rene Jones '86 are now Boston College parents. These Carroll School of Management graduates believe in the power of a BC education and have experienced firsthand how it can transform lives—which is why they support the Heights.

Rene, who is now chairman and chief executive officer of M&T Bank and a University Trustee, credits BC's Thea Bowman AHANA and Intercultural Center with providing him with the day-to-day support he needed as an undergraduate. For him, it began with BC's Options Through Education summer program, which prepares a select group of diverse students for the transition from high school to college. Throughout his four years, he could tap into services offered through the Center, such as how to study and how to interview for an internship. "I owe a lot of my success to the AHANA Center," he says.

"Since we graduated, BC has come a long way in terms of diversity, with representation among the student, faculty, and administrative levels that's more reflective of the country," says Brigid. "In some ways I think the University is truer to its mission now than it has ever been."

If you want to improve the quality of people's lives, Rene says, "one of the key places to do it is in education. Education creates such great possibilities for individuals and benefits the community as a whole."

Brigid, who was BC valedictorian and who has had a career in finance and consulting, agrees. "A BC education changed our lives for the better," she says. "I am proud to see BC take steps to help provide access and equity, and we are happy to support our alma mater."

Rene Jones is grateful for the support he received from BC's Thea Bowman AHANA and Intercultural Center during his undergraduate years at the Heights.

A FAMILY FOR OTHERS

Lorenza P. Arnal and Gabriel Sod Hoffs, P'25

WESTPORT, CONNECTICUT

As a teenager in Mexico City, Lorenza Arnal volunteered in hospital burn units, spending time with patients. Her husband, Gabriel Sod Hoffs, was a founding member of the UNICEF youth brigades in Mexico. Today, Lorenza uses the profits from her salsa company to support an organization that helps lift Mexican families out of poverty, and she and her sons, Max '25 and Alex, donate their time and energy at the US-Mexico border, providing resources and support for new immigrants.

Max continues the family tradition in Chestnut Hill. This fall, he is part of the highly popular PULSE Program for Service Learning at Boston College, an interdisciplinary academic program that combines classroom learning, community work, and reflection.

"Community service is a central component to our family," Gabriel says. "Boston College is where the labor of service is fostered and supported."

Lorenza and Gabriel support BC's Learning to Learn program, which helps first-generation, low-income, and underrepresented students navigate the academic and social landscape at the Heights. "In some ways, Learning to Learn is an extension of our work with recent immigrants," says Lorenza. "We really admire Boston College's commitment to supporting students with access to resources to fill the gaps."

Gabriel also helps Eagles excel beyond campus by recruiting for Blackstone, where he is a managing director. "BC students are extraordinarily well-prepared. They are smart, hardworking, and team-oriented. They are complete human beings and great people—exactly what Blackstone needs," he says.

When Max was accepted at BC, Lorenza and Gabriel explored the ways they could collaborate to build on the University's mission. "The PLC community stood out as one of the many wonderful avenues to help and one in which we could actually make a difference," says Gabriel. "It's through this human connection with other parents that we are able to work together to help BC reach its goals."

They have seen some of the changes at the Heights since they were both graduate students at Harvard in the early 1990s. "It's been rewarding to see what BC has become over the last 30 years and the effect it has in the broader community—thanks to the extraordinary work of true visionaries who built upon its values and mission," Gabriel adds. "I hope 30 years from now people will say they are in awe of what is happening today."

BC's Learning to Learn program supports first-generation students at the Heights.

A SPECIAL COMMUNITY OF LEADERS

There's a reason why leadership is the PLC's middle name: members of the PLC lead in many ways, and all of us at BC are inspired by the difference you are making in our community. In addition to contributing your insights and perspectives on our conference calls and serving as ambassadors at our University events, PLC parents are recognized as members of the 1863 Society. All BC parents who make a planned gift are welcomed to the Shaw Society.

1863 SOCIETY

Honoring the year in which Boston College was founded, the 1863 Society recognizes leadership donors who invest in the University's commitment to excellence with an annual leadership gift.

Visit bc.edu/1863 to learn more.

THE SHAW SOCIETY GIFT PLANNING | BOSTON COLLEGE

Boston College invites all who secure the University's bright future through planned gifts to join the Shaw Society. Now more than 3,000 members strong, the society honors Joseph Coolidge Shaw, S.J., who helped establish Boston College with his legacy gifts of books and the proceeds of his life insurance policy.
