RESEARCH GRANTS: EXTERNAL

- 2021-2027 ARC Centre of Excellence for Children and Families over the Life Course (Australian Research Council CE200100025). Baxter, Principal Investigator. $32,500,000AU. Collaborative research centre seeking to use evidence-based research to develop new knowledge, technology and practices to benefit people living in disadvantage.
- 2020-2021 Moving Communities to Opportunity: Exploring Public Housing Redevelopment as a Strategy for Addressing Structural Barriers to Economic Mobility (Russell Sage Foundation & Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation). Teixeira & Coley, Principal Investigators. $25,916. Quasi-experimental analysis of whether redeveloping public housing into mixed-income communities affect community resources, stressors, and concentrated disadvantage.
- 2019-2024 Paternal Influence on Children's Weight Outcomes (National Institute of Child Health and Human Development 1R01HD098421). Davison, Principal Investigator. $3,074,562. Uses longitudinal cohort data to examine predictors and consequences of fathers' weight-related parenting behaviors.
- 2017-2020 Resource and Stress Processes Underlying Economic Disparities in Early School Success (National Science Foundation). Coley & Votruba-Drzal, Co-Principal Investigators. $307,278. Combining longitudinal data on children's development and family processes with geocoded data from numerous contextual data sources to delineate resource and stress processes underlying economic disparities.

- 2015-2017 Peer Effects on Children and Teachers in Preschool Classrooms (Administration for Children and Families). Coley, Principal Investigator. $146,956. Secondary analysis of longitudinal data on children in state-funded preschools to assess the role of peer effects on children's academic and social development and on classroom instructional quality.
- 2014-2020 ARC Centre of Excellence for Children and Families over the Life Course (Australian Research Council). Baxter, Principal Investigator. $20,000,000AU. Collaborative research centre seeking to advance basic, applied, and translational research to reduce intergenerational and long-term economic disadvantage and improve the life chances of poor children and families.
- 2013-2016 Socioeconomic Disparities in School Readiness Skills and the Role of Early Education and Care (Spencer Foundation). Coley, Principal Investigator; Elizabeth Votruba-Drzal, Co-Investigator. $355,724. Assesses the role of early childhood education programs in ameliorating or exacerbating economic disparities in children's cognitive and behavioral school readiness skills.
- 2011-2015 Housing Contexts and Low-Income Children's Development (MacArthur Foundation). Coley, Principal Investigator; Linda Burton & Tama Leventhal, Co-Investigators. $900,000. Employs intensive ethnographic, survey, and administrative data to assess low-income families' housing experiences and delineate connections to children's health and development from infancy through middle childhood.
- 2011-2013 Housing Contexts and Youth Development within Urban Low-Income Families (W. T. Grant Foundation). Coley, Principal Investigator; Burton & Leventhal, Co-Investigators. $324,841. Assesses multiple aspects of low-income families' housing, neighborhood, and family contexts, and tests links with youth functioning from age 10 to 21.
- 2010-2014 Health Risk Trajectories Across Adolescence: Understanding Gender Differences (W. T. Grant Foundation). Coley, Principal Investigator; Mahalik & Jaffe, Co-Investigators. $394,058. Assesses how family and peer contexts affect the initiation and sustainment of health risk behaviors both directly and in interaction with genetic risks, with particular attention to gender divergence in such behaviors.
- 2008-2010 Child Care Resources in Low-Income Communities. (National Institute of Child Health and Human Development). Coley & Votruba-Drzal, Co-Principal Investigators. $162,593. Assesses child care decisions and the implications of child care experiences for the health and well-being of low-income children and mothers using longitudinal survey, observational, and assessment data.

- 2008-2010 Bidirectional Links between Parenting Processes and Adolescent Risk Behaviors (National Institute of Child Health and Human Development). Coley, Principal Investigator. $156,251. Assesses transactional and bidirectional links between parenting processes and adolescent health risk behaviors (substance use and risky sexual behaviors), employing large, longitudinal data sets.
- 2008-2009 Distinguishing Between Family Structure and Family Instability on Child and Adolescent Well-Being in Low-Income Families (National Center for Marriage Research). Bachman & Coley, Co-Principal Investigators. $20,000. Assesses effects of current family structure, recent transitions, and cumulative instability on low-income children's cognitive, behavioral, and psychological well-being.
- 2006-2007 Welfare Reform and the Well-Being of Children: The Three-City Teacher Survey (Casey Foundation). Cherlin, Principal Investigator. $100,000. Additional component to the Three-City Study comprised of multi-method assessments of low-income urban children's school contexts, educational experiences, and academic functioning in Boston, Chicago, and San Antonio.
- 2004-2007 Welfare Reform and the Well-Being of Children (National Institute of Child Health and Human Development). Cherlin, Principal Investigator. $6,324,019. Longitudinal, multi-method study on the long-term effects of welfare reform on children, families, and communities in Boston, Chicago, and San Antonio. Particular focus on maternal welfare and employment transitions and child and adolescent well-being.
- 2003-2007 Fathers' Contributions to Adolescent Well-Being (W. T. Grant Foundation). Coley, Principal Investigator. $180,688. Analysis of fathers' direct and indirect contributions to adolescent psychosocial and educational well-being, with a particular focus on low-income and nonresidential fathers.
- 2003-2005 Father Involvement and Child Well-Being in Poor Families (National Institute of Child Health and Human Development). Coley, Principal Investigator. $154,500. Analysis of the influence of fathers' financial, human, social, and emotional capital on young children's healthy developmental trajectories in low-income families.
- 2000-2001 Comparing Mother and Father Reports of Father Involvement among Low-Income Minority Families (Health and Human Services Research Development Grant). Coley, Principal Investigator. $26,242. Methodological research addressing the congruence and predictors of congruence between mother and father reports of paternal involvement in low-income households.
- 1998-2002 Welfare Reform and the Well-being of Children. (National Institute of Child Health and Human Development). Cherlin, Principal Investigator. $12,000,000. Longitudinal, multi-method study on the effects of welfare reform on children, families, and communities in Boston, Chicago, and San Antonio.

- 1997-2002 Children, Families, and Welfare Reform: A Three-City Study (Robert Wood Johnson Foundation). Chase-Lansdale, Principal Investigator. $2,024,465. Longitudinal, multi-method study on the effects of welfare reform on children, families, and communities in Boston, Chicago, and San Antonio. Particular focus on child development for preschool and early adolescent children.
- 1997-2001 Three-City Study of Family Economic and Social Well-Being After Welfare Reform (Joyce Foundation). Chase-Lansdale, Principal Investigator. $360,000. Longitudinal, multi-method study on the effects of welfare reform on children, families, and communities in Boston, Chicago, and San Antonio. Particular focus on child care usage and quality among preschool-age children.
