Research Interest:

The primary focus of my research has been on the interaction between the Business and Public Policy processes especially as they apply to the controversial industries of tobacco, alcohol and gambling more commonly known as the "Sin industries." In order to analyze the interactions of these policy processes, there are two aspects to my research. The first aspect has been empirical. Using ARIMA Time Series Intervention analysis, I have measured both the effectiveness of public policy measures in achieving their goals as well as the reactions of business firms towards these legislative initiatives.

This research resulted in my first book entitled, States Lotteries and Legalized Gambling: Painless Revenue or Painful Mirage, Quorum Books, October, 1994. I also published another book entitled Multiple Levels, Multiple Agendas: Business, Politics and Cigarettes, Greenwood Press, October, 1995. This work is concerned with the interactions of public policy makers and cigarette industry leaders. I published a book along with John Mahon entitled, Defining the Competitive Environment: Industry as a Player in the Social and Political Environment, June, 1996. The purpose of the book was to provide managers with a guide to recognize the political and social issues that will affect their industries and to develop policies and programs in order to deal with these issues.

I have also completed a book entitled, The Search for Revenue and the Common Good: An Analysis of Government Regulation of the Alcohol Industry, Quorum, September, 1997. In July, 2001, Government and the Transformation of the Gaming Industry was published. Finally, The Gambling Debate was published in January 2009. Finally I have completed a book on privatization entitled, "Privatize This? Assessing the Opportunities and Costs of Privatization. This book became available in March, 2011. In this book, I examined such issues privatizing a lottery and state operated casinos. I am currently writing a book entitled "Lotteries: The Key to Understanding the Gambling Industry" and will begin a book entitled, "The Ethics of Disgust and the Sin Industries."

The other aspect of my research deals with examining the role that ethical thinking plays in determining the reactions of business and public policy makers to the various dilemmas which they face. Issues such as cigarettes, alcohol, gambling and environmental concerns have many stakeholders all of whom use very different ethical reasoning as they try to make their cases in the business and public processes. In order to deal with these complex issues, I have tried to develop various models and categories that will provide both researchers as well as students a starting point to examine these issues further.

I will continue my research on the gambling phenomenon as well as the cigarette, alcohol and other industries where there is considerable interaction between Business and Public policy makers. I will also continue my research on the ethical thinking that business and public policy makers.
