Founded by Doug Rauch, former president of Trader Joe’s, the company opened its first store in 2015 in Dorchester, MA. Daily Table provides both “grab-n-go” ready to eat meals, and a selection of produce, bread, dairy and grocery items at prices designed to fit within every budget. Daily Table’s meals are priced to compete with fast food options, making it easier for families to eat healthier within their means. Second visit (4:00 pm): Haley House
Haley House is a nonprofit organization based in Boston’s South End and Roxbury neighborhoods. Haley House uses food with purpose and the power of community to break down barriers between people, empower individuals, and strengthen neighborhoods. Always local in focus and based in personal relationship, Haley House has grown organically in response to the harsh realities of social inequality and injustice. They remain committed to nurturing community which inspires and supports lasting personal and societal transformation. Finance Department Registration

As we prepare for registration, the Finance Department is committed to addressing every student’s need and situation as best as possible and in as timely a manner as possible. Since finance classes are in very high demand and registration time slots are randomly assigned by the University, the Department administrators in Fulton 330 manage the official waitlist for all finance classes once they have closed. As sections fill up, the department does its due diligence by checking degree audits to, for example, ensure pre-requisites are met and avoid duplicate registration.

Students are encouraged to stop by the Finance Department to be placed on the official waitlist once their pick time has passed and the class is closed. We remind students to register for any open section of a class at their pick time if the class is needed. Finance professors do not keep separate waitlists; the official waitlist is kept by the finance department administrators.

The Finance Department’s doors are always open to any student who has questions about courses or registration. Our hours are M-F from 9-5pm in Fulton 330. Students are also welcome to email the finance department (findept@bc.edu) with any questions.
