Join The Gavel!

The Gavel is looking for business team members. For those interested, here’s a little bit about The Gavel. We’re a primarily online publication, but we publish one printed magazine each semester as well. As the progressive voice, we focus on student activism and issues of social justice issues, but the full scope of our coverage extends all the way from interviews with Jerome Robinson to movie reviews. Business team members deal with the finances, marketing, and budgeting of The Gavel as a non-profit organization. We receive funding from the Institute for Liberal Arts and are not associated with the university, so our budget and funding process is good practice for the non-profit world. Our business team also deals with marketing our print edition, Marathon Monday shirts, and any other merch we sell throughout the year. The marketing team also manages our Instagram profile and works closely with editors. If anyone is interested, they can check out bcgavel.com and contact Ellen Gerst, Editor-in-Chief, at gerste@bc.edu, or our general manager Sage DuBois at duboissa@bc.edu. We will be sending out applications for all positions in early February.
