

Dissertation guidelines

For any questions, please call the Graduate Programs Office at 617-552-4928 or fax 617-552-2121.

GUIDELINES FOR THE PRESENTATION OF MASTER'S THESES AND DOCTORAL DISSERTATIONS

Your thesis or dissertation marks the end and apex of your degree work in the Graduate School of Nursing. It is both a public testimony of your scholarship, and the vehicle by which you make known the contribution to knowledge which your research has made. For this reason, theses/dissertations are preserved in the Archives of Boston College for scholarly consultation and are generally sent to ProQuest Information and Learning for sale and listing in their own and other international indices. The appearance of your thesis/dissertation is thus a matter of some importance to you, and to Boston College whose name it also bears. A thesis/dissertation which does not conform to the following minimum standards may be returned to the candidate, and the awarding of the degree delayed. If you have any questions about the format of your thesis/dissertation please contact the Associate Dean's Office, Graduate Admissions Office, Graduate School of Nursing.

THESIS / DISSERTATION FORM

The Graduate School of Nursing requires that you turn in the following:

- a traditional title page, which must conform to the sample on the website; if it does not, the Graduate School reserves the right to redo this page for you without notice. Make sure that the title of your thesis/dissertation is concise and meaningful.
- a copyright page, (whether or not you opt to have PROQUEST register for you), which must conform to the sample on the website; if it does not, the Graduate School reserves the right to redo this page for you without notice.
- an abstract, of no more than 150 words for a master's thesis and no more than 350 words for a doctoral dissertation.
- The abstract must include the title of your dissertation/thesis, your name, and that of your thesis/dissertation advisor as its heading.

- Word limit must be strictly adhered to and every word (including title and names) counted. The abstract must be double-spaced in the same type font as the text of your thesis/dissertation.

Please note that you will need additional copies of the traditional title page and the abstract to include with your ProQuest agreement (see below), and one extra traditional title page for the Graduate School of Nursing office use.

The typing of all textual material must be letter-quality, clear, dark black, and double-spaced on one side of the page; notes, bibliographic references, and long quotations may be single-spaced. The type size must be at least 12 point or 25 characters per page width (preferably using the Font Roman Times). While only one type size and font should be used throughout your text, the notes, bibliographic references, and long quotations may be in a type size smaller than your text, but must still be at least 12 point. The use of correction fluids and tapes is not acceptable. Left and right margins must be 1 1/2 inches. Top and bottom margins must be 1 inch. Page numbers must be 1 inch from paper edge on top or bottom of page. These margins must be strictly maintained throughout your work.

Pagination: The supplied title page (with signatures), the traditional title page and the copyright page cannot be numbered and should be submitted in this order. Acknowledgments, table of contents, list of tables, etc. are considered the introductory material of the manuscript and page numbers are expressed in lower case Roman numerals (i, ii, etc.). The abstract immediately precedes the manuscript directly following the copyright page and is not counted in the page numbering. Every page of your thesis/dissertation, after the abstract, including all material in Appendices, must be sequentially numbered.

The Graduate School of Nursing insists on the use of one particular style manual, APA 5th Edition or latest Edition. Make sure that you follow this method with your references and bibliographic notation throughout your dissertation/thesis.

Dissertation guidelines

Charts, graphs, tables and other illustrative material should be produced in black ink. Colors should not be used for shading or in graphs, but should be replaced with labels or cross-hatching. Photographs should be high-contrast black and white, and be affixed with dry mounting tissue or high-quality glue. Over-sized material may be used if carefully folded to 8 1/2 x 11 inches.

PROQUEST DISSERTATION INFORMATION SERVICE AND THE COPYRIGHT OF YOUR THESIS / DISSERTATION

ProQuest Information and Learning is the firm which makes it possible for scholars throughout the world to consult your dissertation/thesis. As its brochure indicates, ProQuest will include your title in its database, your abstract in its catalog of abstracts, and will make available in microfilm or paper copy your dissertation/thesis to researchers who request it. The firm will pay you a royalty if the number of copies of your work ordered exceeds a specified limit. The agreement you sign with ProQuest does not preclude you from making any other publishing arrangements for your work. Please fill out and sign the ProQuest agreement (page A6) at the back of the booklet, and remember to include with it a copy of your traditional title page and abstract.

ProQuest also offers to register the copyright of your thesis/dissertation with the Library of Congress Copyright Office. As you are making the decision whether or not to register your copyright you should know that any work of original authorship is protected by copyright even without registration. It is our understanding, however, that without the registration of copyright, you cannot sue for statutory damages someone who infringes on your copyright. If you wish to do so yourself, you may register your copyright at anytime within five years of the completion of your thesis/dissertation. If you wish to have ProQuest register the copyright for you, please add the payment of $45 for this service to your payment of the $125 (PhD) or $90 (Masters) microfilm and binding fee (make one check, payable to Boston College, for $145).

The ProQuest agreement form asks finally if you are willing to have your work reproduced by the Library of Congress for the blind and handicapped. There is no fee or obligation entailed in this request, and your giving your permission might make possible the work of a scholar who would not otherwise have access to your research.

You will also find at the back of the ProQuest brochure a Pre-Publication Discount Order Form (page A3) which you may use to order extra copies of your dissertation/thesis. Do not include this order form or payment for any extra copies of your thesis/dissertation with the material you hand in to the Graduate School of Nursing. If you choose to order these copies, please mail in the form to PROQUEST with your payment. Their address is on the back of the booklet.

Because your work will be published by ProQuest, it may be necessary for you to obtain the written permission of the copyright owner of copyrighted material you use in your dissertation. If you reproduce a survey or questionnaire in your dissertation, if you use a copyrighted photo or piece of music, or if you have numerous large quotations from the same source, then you must obtain permission for your own use and permission for the use of ProQuest from the copyright owner.

Submit your Dissertation:
[http://www.bc.edu/libraries/help/
howdoi/etd.html](http://www.bc.edu/libraries/help/howdoi/etd.html)

