The PULSE Program for Service Learning

“What we have to learn to do, we learn by doing.”

Aristotle, Nicomachean Ethics (1103b1)

The PULSE Program aims to foster the growth of a critical social justice consciousness in BC students through the interplay of community service in conjunction with critical reflection on classic and contemporary works of philosophy and theology.

In 1969, concerned BC students saw the need to integrate social action with academic reflection. During this time, there were continual protests on campus that philosophy and theology had no relevance to “real life” concerns. Attempting to rectify these misconceptions, student Patrick Byrne (now a PULSE professor in the Philosophy Department) formed the Social Action Committee under a UGBC mandate. Working with Fr. Joseph Flanagan, S.J. (then chair of the Philosophy Department), the PULSE Program was conceived to enable students to gain academic credit for the study of philosophy and theology in conjunction with service in Boston-area non-profit organizations.

At a time of increasing violence in the anti-war movement, the PULSE Program was created as a non-violent initiative to serve others and foster social change. Its original mandate focused on improving urban social conditions by emphasizing rapid and marked social change through coordinated student action. Over time, the program’s emphasis shifted slightly towards positive participation in community initiatives and continued reflection on the nature and extent of the problems of modern community life.

The PULSE Program was one of the first service-learning programs in the country (even predating the term “service learning” itself). Today, over fifty years later, PULSE is an internationally-recognized model program. PULSE now stands with 16 core classes, 12 elective courses, 57 community partners, and about 500 students each year.

The PULSE Program: Who's Who

PULSE Council 2020-2021

The PULSE Council consists of eighteen students who have taken the PULSE core and have been selected by the previous year's council to continue working with the program as student leaders. Council Members assist students and supervisors by answering questions, discussing concerns, and acting as a resource for everyone involved in PULSE. Each Council Member has three office hours per week in the PULSE office. Additionally, during the course of the semester, the Council Member will arrange meetings with all students serving at a particular partner. Meetings are mandatory and take place twice each semester (attendance at council meetings is counted as part of a student's class attendance/participation grade). These meetings provide PULSE students with an opportunity to discuss issues in depth that pertain specifically to their service site.
