TEACHING

A. Lead/Co-lead Courses

Boston College School of Social Work

1. SCWK 9951 - Survey of Research Methods in Social and Behavioral Sciences (3 credits): The purpose of this course is to provide students with an introduction to the purposes of social work research, the wide array of research methods employed by social scientists, and to provide students with an opportunity to apply and practice implementing what they learn. Doctoral level: Fall 2022. (planned)
2. SCWK 7747 - Research Methods (3 credits): This course's primary objective is to help students learn basic research concepts and skills so that they can engage in practice-informed research (i.e., producers of research) and research-informed practice (i.e., consumers of research). Graduate level: Fall 2021.

Tulane University

3. GCHB 6500 - Violence as a Public Health Problem (3 credits): Provides an overview of the epidemiology of violence (scope, causes, risk factors, and consequences) alongside interdisciplinary perspectives and approaches to addressing and solving the problem. Graduate level: Springs 2012, 2013, 2014, 2015, 2016, 2017, 2018, 2019, and 2020.
4. CIRC 3601 [formerly, SPHU 3660/NSCI 3660] – Adverse Childhood Experiences: Intersections of violence, neuroscience, law, and public health (3 credits) (Co-Course-Director): [Funded via the Tulane Carol Lavin Bernick Faculty Grant Program as a first of its kind, interdisciplinary, University-wide 360 course.] The epidemic of violence starts in childhood with impacts across the life span. This course is designed to give students an understanding of the epidemiology of childhood exposure to violence and its consequences, including the effects on brain development, epigenetics, interpersonal relationships, and society, this unique, multi-disciplinary course highlights global and historical perspectives on the etiology of violence and solutions to this public health problem. Interactive technological approaches are used to gain insight into the current neuroscience related to violence as well as the public health impact of violence across generations. Interactive and community-based experiences provide exposure to legal, psychological, medical, forensic, and neighborhood-based training in addressing this topic. Undergraduate level: Springs 2017, 2018, and 2019.
5. GCHB 6120 - Introduction to Monitoring and Evaluation of Health Education and Communication Programs (3 credits): This is an introductory course designed for future health promotion practitioners. The course provides foundational information and skills essential in the design and development of evaluation plans. It is a core course in the GCHB department and was formerly listed as CHSC 612 and CHSC 6120. I developed the course from scratch in 2006 and revised it in 2009. I was the director of this course until 2013 and primary instructor for this course until 2010. I taught this course for eleven semesters. Graduate level: 2006 (Spring, Summer, Fall), 2007 (Spring, Fall), 2008 (Spring, Fall), 2009 (Spring, Fall), Fall 2010, and Fall 2015.

GRANTS AND CONTRACTS

I. Extramural Funding Awarded, Active

R01 HD093665 Taylor/Fleckman (Multi-PI) 9/10/2018 – 6/30/2023
Longitudinal follow-up of brief parenting interventions to reduce risk of child physical maltreatment in a selected population
 Grant amount: $3,033,152

NIH / National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD)

Our long-term goal is to reduce rates of corporal punishment and child physical maltreatment by strengthening the evidence base for brief, widely adaptable, and sustainable interventions deliverable in broad selected and universal populations. The objective is to test the sustained effects of two such interventions, Triple P-Level 2 and Play Nicely, and to examine how social contexts influence their adoption and sustained effects.

R01 HD095609 Theall/Branas (Co-PIs) 8/1/2018–7/31/2023

Place matters - Adaptable Solutions to Violence at the Community Level

Grant amount: $2,840,053

NIH / National Institute of Child Health and Human Development (NICHD)

The goal is to assess the impact of greening and blight remediation on youth and adult violence.

Role: Co-Investigator

Pincus Family Foundation Fleckman/Drury/Francois (Co-PIs) 07/01/2019—6/31/22

Pincus Violence Prevention Scholars Program Total Direct: $556,141

This award is to develop an innovative community engaged research fellowship program focused on building community partner capacity and training the next generations of researchers focused on childhood violence prevention

Role: Co-Investigator (Former Co-PI)

Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC)

The objective of this study is to test the effectiveness of two low resource-intensive and widely adaptable interventions for promoting effective parenting and reducing child physical abuse risk. Parents (n=1200) with children 2 to 7 years of age in a WIC clinic population will be randomly assigned to one of 3 conditions: (1) Triple P-Level 2 only (L2) intervention, (2) Play Nicely intervention, or (3) a “usual care” control group.

Prevention of child maltreatment: A focus on social norms and corporal punishment

Grant amount: $615,415

NIH / National Institute of Child Health and Human Development

The aims of this project are to: 1) assess the effects of prior intervention efforts to change social norms relevant to child maltreatment risk and use of corporal punishment; 2) explore issues relevant to informing theory, instrument, and intervention development regarding corporal punishment use; and 3) explore associations and variations between perceived social norms and use of corporal punishment.
