Religious Exclusivism and Pluralism as a Political Project

Miroslav Volf
Yale Divinity School

Increasingly people of diverse religious backgrounds live together under the same political roof. At the same time, many people embrace politically assertive and religiously exclusivist religions. One of the central questions of today is whether and to what extent it is possible for religious exclusivists to embrace pluralism as a political project.

Miroslav Volf is the Henry B. Wright Professor of Systematic Theology at Yale Divinity School, and the founding Director for the Yale Center for Faith and Culture. A world-renowned theologian and an award winning author, he has written 15 books and over 70 scholarly articles.
