In lieu of our Fall Roundtable (postponed due to Coronavirus), we are pleased to introduce our Distinguished Speaker Series. It will feature leading scholars from the country’s top universities discussing their cutting edge research and engaging in discussion with our corporate partners.

Alicia Sasser Modestino
Professor of Public Policy and Urban Affairs and Economics, Northeastern University
Professor Modestino will discuss the impacts of COVID-19 on working parents, child care, and gender equity based on new data collected during the pandemic. Register here.

Tuesday, September 29, 2020 at 12:00PM EST

Erin L. Kelly
Sloan Distinguished Professor of Work and Organization Studies, MIT
Sloan School of Management
Professor Kelly will share the many years of research that she incorporated into her new book Overload: How Good Jobs Went Bad and What We Can Do about It. Register here.

Wednesday, October 28, 2020 at 12:00PM EST

Sarah Soule
The Morgridge Professor of Organizational Behavior; Senior Associate Dean for Academic Affairs, Stanford University
Professor Soule will share her extensive research on how social movements, like Black Lives Matter, impact organizations. Register here.

Monday, November 12, 2020 at 1:00PM EST

David Smith and Brad Johnson
Associate Professor of Sociology, US Naval War College
Professor of Psychology, US Naval Academy
Professors Smith and Johnson will discuss their new book “Good Guys” How Men Can Be Better Allies for Women in the Workplace. Register here.

Wednesday, December 9, 2020 at 1:00PM EST

Laura Morgan Roberts
Professor of Practice, UVA Darden School of Business
Professor Roberts will share research and insights from her book Race, Work, and Leadership: New perspectives on the Black experience. Register here.

Wednesday, January 27, 2021 at 1:00PM EST