The BC Workforce Roundtable has been an essential partner to global organizations for the past 30 years, providing research and insights into workforce trends and best practices. Roundtable Members view the partnership as essential to their success as they develop their strategy and business case for employee initiatives and programs. Given everything our society is facing today, there has never been a better time to focus on these crucial issues.

Four Areas of Focus
- Engaging & managing talent
- Creating inclusive workplace cultures
- Promoting and fostering employee well-being
- Developing innovative work-life and flexibility strategies and supports

2020 Rapid Crisis Response
- Listening to the needs of our members through member surveys and Open Forum sessions on a range of relevant topics.
- Partnering with expert speakers and thought leaders to share their insights into important topics, such as remote work, loneliness and isolation, child care, paid leave benefits, conversations on race, and balancing work and caregiving.
- Benchmarking with members to document how they have dealt with different aspects of employee support during this time.
- Offering education and training modules to managers and employees at Roundtable Member organizations on topics such as managing virtual teams, successful remote work, and the role of fathers in supporting gender equity at home and at work.

Introductory Rate Benefits
- Invitations to all expert-led virtual events plus 2 member-only open forum discussions
- Ability to make 1 custom member benchmarking request and 1 research inquiry
- Access to the members-only website and all new publications and archived materials
- Attendance at in-person Roundtable meetings, including the 30th Anniversary event
- BCCWF developed education modules/presentations available at discounted rate

Introductory Dues Rate:
$5,000
One year membership

"All the virtual webinars over the past few months have been critical in helping to benchmark and helping us feel like we are not alone in our struggles to assist employees."