Foreword

The Boston College Fact Book captures and summarizes much of the important current and historical information about Boston College. The Fact Book is intended to serve as a reference for information about the University's faculty, students, alumni, personnel, facilities, and budget. Although the Fact Book is generally published annually, this current edition is the first to be published since the 2000-2001 Fact Book was released in August 2001.

The 2002-2003 Boston College Fact Book reflects year-end data from the 2001-2002 fiscal and academic years. In certain instances, information relating to the fall of 2002 (academic year 2002-2003) is presented. Much of the information contained in the Fact Book is cumulative and references annual data for the preceding five or ten year period. Other information is presented in a single year format. Because of the gap in publication of the Fact Book, single-year data for the 2000-2001 fiscal and academic years has been preserved in the 2001-2002 Supplemental Edition, accessible on the Web at <http://www.bc.edu/factbook>.

We are grateful to the many departments and individuals who provided data for this book - the 30th edition of the Fact Book. The majority of the information is extracted from reports produced on a regular basis by the various source offices. Inquiries and comments regarding specific data should be addressed to the responsible office (as noted at the bottom of each item). The Fact Book is also available in its entirety at <http://www.bc.edu/factbook>. We welcome your comments and suggestions for additional information that might be included, or improvements in the way information is presented.

The Mission of Boston College

Boston College draws inspiration for its academic and societal mission from its distinctive religious tradition. As a Catholic and Jesuit university, it is rooted in a world view that encounters God in all creation and through all human activity, especially in the search for truth in every discipline, in the desire to learn, and in the call to live justly together. In this spirit, the University regards the contribution of different religious traditions and value systems as essential to the fullness of its intellectual life and to the continuous development of its distinctive intellectual heritage.

Strengthened by more than a century and a quarter of dedication to academic excellence, Boston College commits itself to the highest standards of teaching and research in undergraduate, graduate and professional programs and to the pursuit of a just society through its own accomplishments, the work of its faculty and staff, and the achievements of its graduates. It seeks both to advance its place among the nation's finest universities and to bring to the company of its distinguished peers and to contemporary society the richness of the Catholic intellectual ideal of a mutually illuminating relationship between religious faith and free intellectual inquiry.

Boston College pursues this distinctive mission by serving society in three ways:

- by fostering the rigorous intellectual development and the religious, ethical and personal formation of its undergraduate, graduate and professional students in order to prepare them for citizenship, service and leadership in a global society;
- by producing nationally and internationally significant research that advances insight and understanding, thereby both enriching culture and addressing important societal needs; and
- by committing itself to advance the dialogue between religious belief and other formative elements of culture through the intellectual inquiry, teaching and learning, and the community life that form the University.

Boston College fulfills this mission with a deep concern for all members of its community, with a recognition of the important contribution a diverse student body, faculty and staff can offer, with a firm commitment to academic freedom, and with a determination to exercise careful stewardship of its resources in pursuit of its academic goals.

A Brief History of Boston College

Boston College was founded by the Society of Jesus in 1863, and is one of twenty-eight Jesuit colleges and universities in the United States. With three teachers and twenty-two students, the school opened its doors on September 5, 1864. At the outset and for more than seven decades of its first century, the college remained an exclusively liberal arts institution with emphasis on the Greek and Latin classics, English and modern languages and with more attention to philosophy than to the physical or social sciences. Religion, of course, had its place in the classroom as well as in the nonacademic life of the college.

Originally located on Harrison Avenue in the South End of Boston, where it shared quarters with the Boston College High School, the College outgrew its urban setting toward the end of its first fifty years. A new location was selected in Chestnut Hill, then almost rural, and four parcels of land were acquired in 1907. A design competition for the development of the campus was won by the firm of Maginnis and Walsh, and ground was broken on June 19, 1909, for the construction of Gasson Hall. It is located on the site of the Lawrence farmhouse, in the center of the original tract of land purchased by Father Gasson, and is built largely of stone taken from the surrounding property.

Later purchases doubled the size of the property, with the addition of the upper campus in 1941, and the lower campus with the acquisition of the Lawrence Basin and adjoining land in 1949. In 1974 Boston College acquired Newton College of the Sacred Heart, a mile-and-a-half from the main campus. With fifteen buildings standing on forty acres, it is now the site of the Boston College Law School and residence halls housing 800 freshmen.

Though incorporated as a university since its beginning, it was not until its second half-century that Boston College began to fill out the dimensions of its charter. The Summer Session was inaugurated in 1924; the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences in 1925; the Law School, 1929; the Evening College, 1929; the Graduate School of Social Work, 1936; the College of Business Administration, 1938. The latter, along with its Graduate School established in 1957, is now known as The Wallace E. Carroll School of Management. The Schools of Nursing and Education were founded in 1947 and 1952, respectively. Weston Observatory, founded in 1928, was accepted as a department of Boston College in 1947, offering courses in geophysics and geology.

The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences began programs at the doctoral level in 1952. Now courses leading to the doctorate are offered by twelve Arts and Sciences departments. The Schools of Education and Nursing, the Carroll Graduate School of Management, and the Graduate School of Social Work also offer doctoral programs.

In 1927 Boston College conferred one earned bachelor's degree and fifteen master's degrees on women through the Extension Division, the precursor of the Graduate School of Arts and Sciences, the Evening College, and the Summer Session. By 1970 all undergraduate programs had become coeducational. Today women students comprise more than half of the University's enrollment.

In 1996 the Evening College became the College of Advancing Studies, offering a master's degree as well as the bachelor's degree. The university's longest presidency, 24 years, came to an end when Father J. Donald Monan became chancellor and was succeeded in the presidency by Father William P. Leahy.

During the decade of the nineties, the Boston College campus has been changed in significant ways. The University has completed several major construction projects, including the expansion and renovation of Higgins Hall, the home of the Biology and Physics Departments; updating of residence halls on the upper campus and Newton campus; and the construction of a new office building for faculty and administrative units on lower campus. These projects have added 260,000 square feet to Boston College facilities and have resulted in on-campus housing for more than 80% of the undergraduates currently attending Boston College.

In recent years, major advances have also occurred in student selectivity, as well as faculty research and scholarship. For instance, between 1996 and 2002, freshman applications increased from 16,501 to 21,133, and the middle range SAT scores of admitted students increased from 1200-1340 to 1250-1390. During this same period, the dollar amount of sponsored project awards received by the University more than doubled, and the number of research centers and institutes grew from six to twenty-one.

Since 1996, the University's endowment has grown from $590 million to approximately $1 billion, the result of successful investment strategies and the Ever to Excel campaign, which has raised more than $400 million in cash and pledges to date.
