

Presents as part of its Jewish-Christian Lecture Series

Professor Mary Rose D'Angelo

speaking in Prof. Angela Harkins's Gospel of Mark course

Christ Healing a bleeding woman, as depicted in the Catacombs of Rome

Mark, Women, and the Representation of Judaism in Mark 5:21-43

Tuesday, February 21, 2017

12:30-1:30 p.m.

Simboli Hall 135

Boston College Brighton Campus

All are welcome. Please email cjlearning@bc.edu if you would like to attend.

Professor Mary Rose D'Angelo (Ph.D. in N.T. at Yale, 1976) has taught in the Christianity and Judaism in Antiquity program of the Department of Theology at the University of Notre Dame for 23 years and is now an emerita professor. Her research and writing is in the area of NT studies, Judaism in Roman antiquity, and women and gender in ancient religion. Professor D'Angelo's monographs and edited collections include Moses in the Letter to the Hebrews, Women in Christian Origins, and Crossroads in Christology; as well as numerous articles and essays on women and discipleship in Christianity and Judaism and in the Greco-Roman world. Among her recent publications is her essay entitled "Sexuality in Jewish Writings 200 BCE to 200 CE" in the Wiley-Blackwell Companion to Greek and Roman Sexualities (2014).